Okays NYC loan plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Banking subcommittee today approved a bill offering $7 billion in loan guarantees to fiscally ailing New York City.

After two hours of debate, the economic stabilization subcommittee voted 10 to 6 for the measure that offers the city $2 billion more than was sought by New York Gov. Hugh Carey. President Ford has vowed to veto any bill to give aid to New York.

Nine Democrats voted for the measure. Two voted against it. Ranking GOP member Stewart B. McKinney of Connecticut was the only Republican to vote for it.

The $7 billion figure, which includes $2 billion in short-term, 11-month securities, was determined by consultation with New York State officials. A subcommittee lawyer said the higher figure more accurately reflected the state's needs. Carey's lower request was based on expectations of what he thought Congress would approve, the lawyer said.

The bill now goes to the House Banking Committee.

The Senate Banking Committee on Thursday approved a bill authorizing the federal government to guarantee loans of up to $5 billion.

The House measure, if passed by the full committee, is expected to be sent to the House Judiciary Committee and combined with a proposal by Ford to modify federal bankruptcy laws to permit New York City to continue essential services if the city defaults.

A Senate judiciary subcommittee today planned to hear administration spokesmen discuss President Ford's proposal to revise bankruptcy laws to help New York maintain essential services after a default.

Shapiro predicts Senate will uphold Walker school aid veto

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

The continuation of one of the most "arm-twisting" issues in the Illinois House since the extended effort to elect a speaker last January will resume on Monday when that body will again take up the issue whether to override Gov. Walker's veto of $142 million in state aid to public schools.

Sen. David Shapiro, R-Amboy, Thursday said he is not sure of the outcome in the House but predicted the Senate will uphold the Walker veto should it come to that body.

Republicans are placed in an uncomfortable position in this battle. The party stand is against overriding the governor which makes the GOPs seem to be allies of Walker and against the Daley Democrats who are pushing the fight to override the governor's veto.

Shapiro explains, "We are not for or against Gov. Walker or for or against education. The state is in poor financial condition which will be worsened if the vetoed appropriations are restored."

The senator notes there will be a deficiency of from $150 million to $200 million in the aid appropriations for public aid payments requested by the governor; that there will be deficiency in other departments under the direction of Walker which may reach $25 million.

"The state will end the fiscal year on June 30 with a cash balance of about $115 million," reported the senator. "But that is not all there is to it," he continued.

There are what is known as "lapsed payments" which are appropriations made in one fiscal year which claims for payments are not filed until the next fiscal year. The effect of "lapsed payments" is to reduce the amount of cash available for spending in the succeeding fiscal year.

Sen. Shapiro and others, including State Comptroller George Lindberg, estimate the "lapsed payments" for obligation incurred before June 30, 1976, but to be paid after July 1 of that year, will amount to at least $250 million.

After deducting the estimated "lapsed payments" from the calculated cash balance on June 30, 1976, it shows a deficit of from $133 million to $166 million.

The Illinois Economic and Fiscal Commission has set the deficit after applying "lapsed payments" at $133 million; the Bureau of the Budget, which is the governor's forecast, estimates it at $144 million and the State Chamber of Commerce predicts it will be $166 million.

Another way to put this is, if a family at the end of a year has $400 in checking and savings accounts and has $400 in bills which are due, the family is not in a very good financial condition.

Shapiro pointed out the state is in a worse financial condition because after deducting bills owed at the end of its fiscal year, it has a deficit balance.

"It is borrowing from next year," observed the senator.

Shapiro said it is from this consideration of the state's woeful cash condition, that he and other Republicans are opposed to overriding the governor's veto of school aid funds.

"The governor's proposal which is known as 'hold harmless' is a ploy to gain him support from downstate urban areas," charged the senator.

The "hold harmless" idea guarantees school districts which have lost numbers of enrolled students will receive at least as much in state aid funds as was paid last year.

School districts which stand to gain most from the bill are Rockford, Peoria, Danville, Decatur, Champaign, Urbana, Springfield, Rock Island and Moline.

"This bill will give these schools 120 per cent more than they should receive according to the formula for distributing funds to local schools."

"The veto of school aid by the governor has the effect of allocating school districts 95 per cent of what they received during the current year."

"Why should we reward and not cut down aid to school districts who lose say, 500 students which I would estimate would cut off 15 teaching positions, while we give school districts who have not lost school enrollments less than they got from the state last year?" asked the senator.

"Furthermore," he continued, "those districts who lost enrollments experience an increase in assessed valuation per student and will result in there being more local financial resources to support education in those districts."

"In short, they do not need the break the 'hold harmless' proposes to give them and is unfair to other districts and can only be considered to be motivated as an attempt to gain favorable sentiment for the governor in those downstate urban areas."

Dixon will receive nothing from the "hold harmless" bill and if the governor's veto is upheld will receive $136,000 less in state aid next year than will be paid this year.

Vail faces parents on suspensions

By WAYNE LYON

"Everyone knows there were some kids who were drinking who are still playing on that football team."

That was a statement made by a parent at Thursday night's Booster Club meeting in the Dixon High School cafeteria.

The statement was directed at Chuck Vail, DHS athletic director, who had the floor and was letting those assembled freely make statements and answer questions on the suspension of 16 athletes and a number of cheerleaders and pom-pom girls following a bonfire Oct. 17, at which there was drinking by some students.

Vail could only answer "The kids know. Those who failed to step forward will just have to live with their consciences."

Vail went on, "When we asked those who had been drinking to step forward some did. I feel a few did not. The kids who were honest are being punished," he admitted.

Vail explained the code to the group and then added "I'm not saying there aren't loopholes in it. But the coaches and administration voted at a meeting last fall to enforce it to the letter. We have to have training rules and we have to enforce them."

That brought response from the crowd "Beautiful. But how do you determine what to do? Who makes the decision?"

"All the coaches are brought in to serve as sort of a jury," was Vail's reply.

Head Football Coach Sam Applebaum shed some light on how the incident and its subsequent suspensions came to light. He explained that at Monday's practice following the bonfire and homecoming game, one of his coaches mentioned that there was drinking at the bonfire.

"I didn't give it much credence," said Applebaum, "but the longer I thought about it, the more I was bothered. I stopped practice and asked how many players had been there. About 85 per cent of the hands were put up. Then I asked can anyone deny there were varsity football players drinking?"

"What's going to happen to some of the suspended athletes who have time on their hands? Do you think about that?"

Vail answered "I sure do. I would rather see them partici-

grate."

Another touchy question, "Would the matter have been handled the same way if Dixon's football record would have been 5-0 instead of 1-5?"

Vail was emphatic that it would have.

Asked why cheerleaders were suspended, Vail said that Marilyn Trulock, cheerleader coach, has a far stricter set of rules than those used for athletes.

One parent brought up a point. "What's going to happen to some of the suspended athletes who have time on their hands? Do you think about that?"

Vail answered "I sure do. I would rather see them participating, but I was a little lax last fall in a couple of disciplinary measures and I got in dutch with my coaches."

The news media ran into some criticism for its publication of the case, one parent saying the school should have been left to handle it.

Returning to the fact that all who drank are not being punished, one parent chimed in "Some are supposedly scot-free. That's what repulses me."

Applebaum had a comment of his own, noting how many more were at the meeting than at the usual Booster Club functions. His comment took the form of a question "Why did it take a situation like this to get this many people here?"

Gun control killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subcommittee's decision to delay consideration of handgun legislation has all but killed chances of House passage of new gun controls this year.

The decision by the House judiciary subcommittee on crime came Thursday after the panel voted 6 to 1 to reject a proposal that would have banned all private ownership of handguns in America. Only Chairman John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., who sponsored the bill, voted for it.

After taking the action, subcommittee members put aside other proposals for handgun controls and elected instead to have the majority and minority counsels list various gun-control proposals. These would include registration, licensing of handgun owners and a ban on "Saturday night specials."

Pro and con on reappraising property evaluations

Conroy for

"My experience as a member of the Lee County Board of Review is that most people who come in to complain about tax assessments are not in great disagreement about the value placed on their property but feel the assessed value, compared to that of their neighbor's, is not in line and often is untrue," asserted Edward Conroy as he expounded on the need for the county to commission a professional firm to reappraise all property in the county.

Conroy is also a member of the County Board from District 3.

He termed the real estate taxation concept structure as having a "major degree of unfairness," and being in need of "a major overhaul."

The problem is, from Conroy's view, "overhauling the property tax structure must be done by the State Legislature, and not the county, and no one can tell when this will be done," but on the other hand, "the need for the county to equalize assessment of property, in fairness to those who pay the taxes, cannot wait to be accomplished."

He blames the current need for a reappraisal of property on inflation and the rapid turnover of real estate which has caused the assessments of parcels which have been purchased in recent years to be valued higher than those which have not sold for a long period of time.

Conroy further noted economic factors will from time to time have effects which will influence property valuations to become unequalized and will bring about the need for a new reappraisal but "I cannot say how many years it should be between reappraisals."

He also said it has been estimated by real estate people that "farm land has gone up $200 per acre since the United States negotiated a five-year grain and oil pact with the Soviet Union."

When property values change too fast, (See CONROY FOR on page 10)

The Lee County Board on Oct. 14 on a 16 to 9 vote reserved $150,000 of federal revenue sharing funds which may later be appropriated to pay for reappraisal of all property in the county by a professional firm. The board will have to vote again before the funds may be expended to pay for a property reappraisal. Estimates of cost for such a project range from $150,000 to $190,000. The last professional reappraisal of property in the county was in 1962 and cost about $90,000. Robert H. Nellis, managing editor of The Telegraph, interviewed a spokesman favoring the reappraisal and an opponent of the project and authored the two accompanying articles which present their respective views.

Faber against

"Any equalization of property valuation in Lee County for taxation can be done by the supervisor of assessments and if he doesn't do it, then the county should get someone who will," recommended Warren Faber, District 2, member of the County Board, while discussing his reasons for being against employing a professional firm to reappraise all property in the county.

"Furthermore," said Faber, "there is no way to judge how good an appraisal firm is."

He cited the new state law which reduced the percentage assessment for taxation of full cash value of property from 50 per cent to 33 1-3rd per cent. "This new bill gives more responsibility to the county board chairman to see that the Board of Review and the supervisor of assessments do their jobs, than was true under the old one, as far as I know," commented Faber.

The text of the new legislation reads: "The Board of Review shall act as an equalizing authority. The board shall lower or raise the total assessed value of property in any assessment district within the county so that such property will be assessed at 33 1-3rd per cent of fair cash value."

The new law also reads: "By means of comparison of assessed valuations and estimated 33 1-3rd per cent of fair cash values established through the analysis of property transfers, property appraisals, such information as may be submitted by interested taxing bodies and such other means as it seems proper and reasonable, the board shall annually ascertain and determine the percentage relationship for each assessment district in the county, between the valuations at which locally-assessed property is listed by assessors and the estimated 33 1-3rd per cent of full cash value of such property."

The board member from Sublette Township also noted the new legislation declares farm land shall be valued for assessment by

Sadat does not want war

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Egyptian President Anwar el-Sadat, now visiting the United States as the official guest of President Ford, says "Let's keep going" with the Israel disengagements. But he does so with grace and in the face of long, and very discouraging, delays.

I was in Egypt in January 1974 when Sadat agreed to the first disengagement of Egypt-Israel forces. I also dined in Luxor with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Both Sadat and Mr. Kissinger told me then that they were convinced that Israel would soon agree to a second withdrawal of its forces in Israel-occupied Egypt.

President Sadat invited me back to Egypt in July for the wedding of his daughter Noha in Alexandria. On this second 1974 visit to Egypt, Sadat told me of his dismay that Israel's second withdrawal still had not taken place. Nearly seven months had passed. In fact, Israel did not make its second withdrawal until a short time ago.

This was about a year and a half after both Egypt's president and Mr. Kissinger believed it would occur.

Behind the scenes, Sadat long suspected that Israel had opted for delaying tactics, officially employed in the belief that time is on the side of Israel in which to harness even additional American and other aid to Israel.

And as the months and months went on and became a full year and a half, this delay added profoundly to Sadat's burdens regarding Israel on his rocky road to moderation.

Israel first took in the 1948 war 3,000 square miles more territory than the United Nations resolution of Nov. 29, 1947 gave the new state. Then Israel seized 400 square miles of the Golan Heights from Syria in the October 1967 war. Then Israel seized an additional 300 square miles from Syria in the October 1973 war.

None of this expansion includes the seizures in Egypt's Sinai Peninsula or elsewhere, as well as Jerusalem, since Israel was founded.

Accordingly, Sadat—the most moderate leader in the Arab world—confronts the question the Arab world asks: Does Israel want peace or territory?

The Arab world calls its Israel conflict the "Sira'a"—"the historic struggle." It regards Israel as a Zionist outpost forced into its midst—supported chiefly by world Jewry and especially the Jewish community in the United States. It gives our Jewish community no credit whatever for its sense of justice.

The Arab world adamantly claims that the U.S. supports Israel for domestic political reasons, even though Jewish people represent less than three per cent of America's population.

It claims that this support involves not only New York State's 41 Electoral College votes but that the Jewish vote can also be a decisive difference in California, Florida, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania. These are traditionally "battleground states." Moreover, the Arab world knows that the Jewish vote is all but unanimous in support of Israel and that this support is not a "switcher" issue. It stays put.

Accordingly, Sadat's immediate problem—as he knows full well—is against the Arab world's clamor for another war with Israel.

It sees Israel as one of many intruders over the past 2,000 years; as though Israel were expected to experience one day a fate similar to the Crusader kingdoms, the Turkish Ottoman Empire and the French and British mandates.

The Arabs say that "a zephyr may momentarily part the mist of suspicion but a strong wind is needed to clear them entirely." The Koran also teaches that there is "a time to think and a time to strike boldly."

Egypt's arsenal has been built up through transfers of French and British arms, chiefly by Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. Saudi Defense Minister Abdel Aziz has declared, "All we own is at the disposal of the Arab nations."

But behind the scenes, most certainly and without any question whatever, Sadat does not want war. This is a positive fact.

Electoral land mine set for '76

By JEFFREY ST. JOHN

WASHINGTON— "Many observers believe," asserts National Review publisher William A. Rusher, "the time is opportune for a new major party, consciously designed to replace the Republican Party altogether."

Rusher makes this statement in his book, "The Making of the New Majority Party" (Sheed and Ward, Inc., N.Y., $6.95). When the book was published earlier this year it was greeted by Republican leaders with a long yawn. Conservatives have been talking about such a move for 20 years.

But conservatives like Rusher have now gone beyond the talking stage and are entering into a new era of action because, as Rusher says, "The recent history of the Republican Party is little more than a record of the compromises made by conservative majorities, who knew instinctively how victory could be fashioned, to appease a liberal minority whose sole effective function has been to insure the defeat of conservatism."

This time next year the 1976 presidential election could be thrown into the U.S. House of Representatives! The electoral land mine being planted to bring this political explosion about is "Operation, Freedom of Choice," a third-party ballot position in all 50 states.

Rusher, in fact, has become the chairman of such an effort, along with former Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) director and now head of the Conservative Caucus, Howard Phillips, and Eli Howell, former political adviser to Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

All three represent a coalition of political, social and populist conservatives—unprecedented in recent political history. Their effort to obtain an independent ballot position well before the political conventions next summer gives the conservatives enormous leverage.

In the past, conservatives in both parties always had been confronted with arguments of party loyalty or the cynical contention that they had nowhere to go. But the rise of independent voters and the coalition of conservatives throw these arguments into doubt.

Conservative leaders believe that the polls showing a majority of Americans identifying themselves as conservatives provide the basis for a "New Majority Party." The third-party ballot line in 1976 is a dramatic move in that direction and a decisive challenge to the Republican and Democratic parties.

Heading up "Operation, Freedom of Choice" will be 36-year-old former Florida prosecuting attorney Ken Rast. The operation will cooperate with Wallace-oriented parties like the American Independent Party and the American Party—which claim that together they have ballot positions in 14 states.

"Our operational objective," Rast told this columnist, "is not to provide a political vehicle for any individual or party, but to have the option available prior to the major party conventions and election next year.

"We are not going to make the mistake of previous elections and engage in intramural domestic detente with the liberals and accommodate to their demands. In 1976 this kind of detente is not going to be part of the political ball game."

Phillips, former OEO director under Nixon, forecast to this columnist what he expects from both parties next year and said he didn't care if "Operation, Freedom of Choice" hurt the Republicans and President Ford next year.

"The American people," he told me, "are going to have Ford-Rockefeller liberalism and a Kennedy-McGovern liberalism as their choice next year."

"Operation, Freedom of Choice" is going to give the American people the same opportunity they had in 1972 when they gave Richard Nixon his massive electoral mandate on social issues like amnesty, abortion, busing, bureaucracy and unbalanced budgets that have produced high rates of inflation and rob the majority of working Americans of their earnings."

Phillips believes prospects for a third-party presidential candidate throwing the 1976 election into the House of Representatives are better now than in 1968, when George Wallace took 46 electoral votes and alarmed the major parties.

Study proves it's expensive

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)— I have just finished reading a series of studies on marijuana, alcohol, tobacco use and attitudes. They've cost somewhat over $1.2 million to date.

One section relates alcohol and marijuana to crime. After showing statistically a strong association between use of both and shoplifting, theft, breaking and entering—the greater the use, the closer the correlation with crime—the study goes on to say we should make nothing of the matter.

Some of the individuals studied committed these crimes before turning to drugs, some after. And the data is such that one can come to no conclusions at all about any relationship between crime and the use of either marijuana or alcohol—either to say that drug use leads to crime or a proclivity for crime leads to drug use.

So what do we have?

Other sections of the reports are equally yes, no, perhaps, but don't put any credence into it. We need more money to make further studies.

Some of the researchers believe their work shows the use of tobacco among some major groups of the population may be increasing. Others think this may be a statistical anomaly giving a result which may or may not be true in fact. Some believe their studies indicate tobacco use is declining percentagewise in the same groups.

There seems to be agreement among the researchers that marijuana and alcohol are growing in popularity among the younger groups, the ages from 12 to 17. Percentage use is seemingly highest among the 18 to 25 year olds. But it's not clear what happens then—whether this group keeps on with marijuana in the same numbers, or whether, once settled down with a wife and family, as one researcher put it, there's a tendency to give up marijuana, if not alcohol and tobacco.

The mushiness of these studies is typical of much of the research now being funded by the federal government in an attempt to attack crime, welfare, drug addiction and other contemporary social problems.

When some of the more esoteric examples of this social research are attacked, bodies of scientists jump to the defense of these researchers. They develop—at government expense—pamphlets extolling the value of basic research in physics, mathematics, chemistry and biology, and the practical results which have come from what was once called "useless" research in these fields.

We're told of TV being developed in part as a result of Thomas Alva Edison's "useless" observation of an electric current which seemed to flow from filament to wire across a vacuum gap.

The defenders forget this physical research was quite different from the studies we're now discussing. Standards were high, data objectively recorded, conditions controlled, and results not based on opinion or personal ego gratification.

Much of today's social research depends on the preconceptions of the researcher and his selection of human subjects and data.

Some social scientists are devoted to a cause; they're attempting to prove something. The material selected proves their cause.

Others, attempting to be scientific, waffle with data so indefinite they have nothing.

Still others come to conclusions which don't jibe with their data, or base conclusions on samples too small to be of value. Some spend thousands of hours gathering material which even they, on being cornered, confess is meaningless. Why was it gathered? Because previous investigators had done it.

By DON OAKLEY

A nationwide effort is underway to repeal laws that require motorcyclists to wear helmets when they ride on public streets and roads, reports the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

The effort is spearheaded primarily by motorcyclists and motorcyclist organizations concerned about their alleged loss of constitutional rights. Those fighting helmet laws also claim that helmets which meet the federal standard are actually a hazard.

All the states except California, Illinois and Utah have laws that comply with the Department of Transportation's standards regarding motorcycle safety. For several years, motorcyclists have sought repeal of mandatory helmet laws by concentrating efforts in individual state legislatures, and 14 states currently have such bills under consideration.

Repeal efforts have been thwarted, however, mainly because of the possibility of a state's losing all federal highway safety funds and 10 per cent of federal highway construction funds. Thus efforts are now shifting to the national level in an attempt to remove the threat of federal penalties against states repealing helmet laws. Five such bills are now pending in Congress.

Cyclists' helmets: a shared concern

To the claim that helmets themselves cause accidents and injuries, the National Highway Traffic Administration replies that it knows of no factual data to support this contention. On the contrary, a 1974 analysis comparing helmet efficiency in Michigan (which has a helmet law) and Illinois (which does not have a helmet law) found that motorcycle crashes in Illinois resulted in "almost three times more serious or fatal head injury than similar accidents in Michigan."

But what about the argument of motorcyclists that it's nobody's business but their own if they want to risk having their skulls smashed?

Both the validity and the constitutionality of helmet laws are well established, says the Insurance Institute. It quotes the 1972 opinion of the Federal District Court for Massachusetts upholding that state's law (subsequently affirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court):

"While we agree with plaintiff that the act's only realistic purpose is the prevention of head injuries incurred in motorcycle mishaps, we cannot agree that the consequences of such injuries are limited to the individual who sustains the injury. . . . The public has an interest in minimizing the resources directly involved."

"From the moment of the injury, society picks the person up off the highway; delivers him to a municipal hospital and municipal doctors; provides him with unemployment compensation if, after recovery, he cannot replace his lost job, and, if the injury causes permanent disability, may assume the responsibility for his and his family's subsistence."

"We do not understand a state of mind that permits plaintiff to think that only he himself is concerned."

Voice of the people

Jabs Anderson

In a recent article on the editorial page of The Dixon Evening Telegraph was an article relating to an audit of the Federal Reserve System.

I would like to know for what reason or reasons, John Anderson, congressman, voted against an audit of the Reserve System when it seems so likely there is a great misappropriation of funds in this area of government?

As stated, the CIA and FBI, two of our country's watchdogs, which must remain as secret as possible to keep our nation secure, is being broken wide open, leaving our present form of government quite vulnerable to outside forces that are not in the interest of a free society.

Yet, we have an arm of government that isn't controlled or watched by anyone and is able to spend our (the taxpayer) money as it sees fit. What a beautiful way to drive up taxes and inflation. Something seems terribly wrong, Mr. Anderson.

Sincerely yours,
Tom Williams

Sen. Percy, friends

It seems to me that Sen. Percy doesn't learn or remember very well. I wrote him some time ago telling what must be done to cure the ills of our most wonderful country. First, I know that he and his friends must be put out of office, for they all are best friends of the Communist countries and their leaders. Then the four Rockefelleres, Nelson, David, John D. III and Rodman C. should be deported from these United States, as must Kissinger, Gerald Ford, McNamara, Sargent Shriver, Arthur Schlesinger and James T. Lynn—the director of the Office of Management and Budget.

The Communistic senators and representatives must also be deported to their beloved Communist countries. The senators who are selling us into slavery are these Council On Foreign Relations Members (CFR) Abraham Ribicoff, Frank Church, Adlai Stevenson III, Birch Bayh, Edmund S. Muskie, Edward W. Brooke, Hubert Humphrey, Walter Mondale, Stuart Symington, Clifford Case, Jacob Javits, Clairborne Pell, Lloyd Bentsen, Gale McGee and others. Other Communist Senators are Percy, Cranston, Tunney, Hartke, Kennedy, Philip Hart, Eagleton, Mansfield, Metcalf, Hatfield, Schweiker, Hugh Scott, Pastore, McGovern, Frank Moss, Henry Jackson, Gaylor Nelson, Inouye and others.

Our Representative, John B. Anderson, is another member of the CFR, a Communist organization. Some of the aforementioned are also members of the Bilderbergers, another bad Communist organization. These should all be deported to Russia and its satellites.

Big government must be done away with, as must OSHA. America must get out of the United Nations above all.

Capital punishment must be returned without a doubt. All laws must be stiffened and enforced, so the crooks know that we mean business. The Communistic leaning palookas would have no need to disarm us then, for the crooks would be imprisoned or electrocuted.

The dummies, whom we have so foolishly voted into office, just can't seem to learn or understand that the courts must be straightened up, and all laws enforced to the utmost. I can bet on it that none of them were ever woodsmen, for a woodsman would never continue on into the forest when lost. They have never learned that you must always beat a retreat along the same path, when lost. This country is lost by incompetent leadership and one-worldism, and must once more retrace its steps to find freedom, and to throw off the yoke of slavery with which we are being engulfed.

That rotten Kissinger is absolutely obsessed with the idea that the Panama Canal must be given away. I would suggest that Kissinger be given away with the rest of the crooked lovers of Communism. That would be a most wonderful start toward curing our ills. With them would go the United Nations, OSHA and most of our bureaucrats. I'm sure these deportations would help plenty.

I noticed where our faithful Representative, John B. Anderson, voted against an audit of the Federal Reserve System. I think that is most wonderful! We need more like him, in Russia. He is a Communist!

Most interesting to me is that many members of the CFR are running for the presidency. Hubert Humphrey, Birch Bayh, and Lloyd Bentsen are three which come to mind.

Henry Jackson is a Liberal and we don't need him either. I ask that the voters inform themselves better, that they may be much wiser when choosing candidates in the voting booth. Please think it over well, for we must do so!

Most factually and truly yours,
Miss Hope Hinds

25 YEARS AGO

Twenty-one Dixon area youths entrained for Chicago and life in the armed forces for at least 21 months this morning. A total of 26 were scheduled to go, but there were four "legitimate" postponements due to illness and other causes, and one delinquent whose name will be turned over to the FBI.

Local hunters are oiling up their guns, stocking up on ammunition and generally getting ready for the migratory game bird season which opens in this area, November third, at noon.

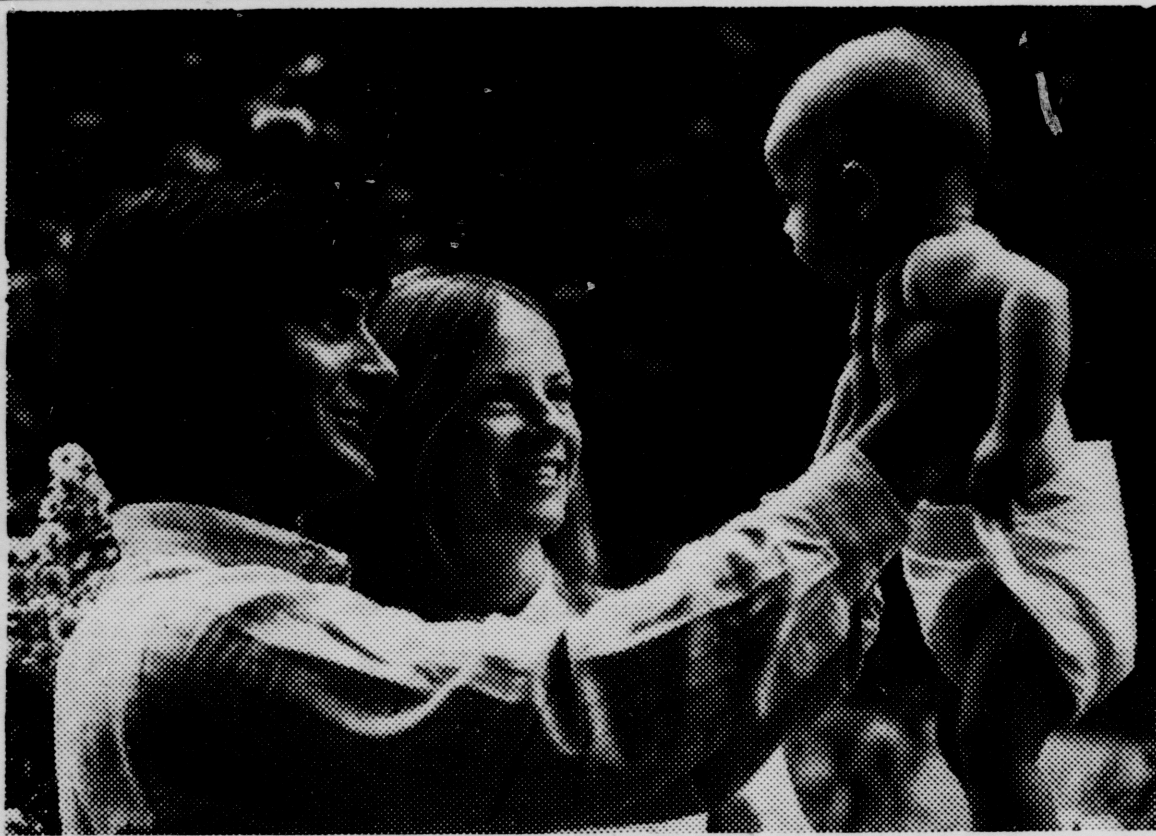

Welk spotlights America's travel delights

← The Semonski Sisters (left) are scheduled for a guest appearance on the Lawrence Welk Show Nov. 1 from 6 to 7 p.m. on Channel 4. The sisters, whose ages range from 19 to 8, will sing a sprightly Latin song, "Cuanto Le Gusta," this week.

→ Gail Farrell and Sandi Griffiths team up in this week's Welk program as railroad hands as they sing "Atchison, Topeka and the Santa Fe." The maestro's show this week serenades America's ever-on-the-move travelers to vacation spots hither and yon, via tunes about trains, planes, cars, boats and "Bandwagons."

Secure a sound financial future through IRA.

- An Individual Retirement Account (IRA) is a personal tax-sheltered retirement savings plan. For the first time, thousands of American workers who have never been covered by a pension plan can build a more secure future for themselves and their families.
- With the new Individual Retirement Account (IRA), you could be setting aside up to $1500 or 15 per cent of your income (whichever is less) every year for your retirement years. Not only does your money earn interest, but you don't pay income tax on either savings or interest until after you retire. So you save even more.
- MAY BOTH HUSBAND AND WIFE HAVE AN IRA?
A working wife or husband may establish a separate IRA, provided he or she is not a participant in any other retirement plan. The many wives now working outside their homes will want to look into this possibility as a means of building extra retirement income.

Requiem for Beatles hoax

By STEPHEN FORD

Perhaps it's morbid curiosity or maybe a macabre sort of nostalgia but the now-acknowledged hoax of exBeatle Paul McCartney's death is as vivacious today as when it was topic "A" exactly six years ago.

The rumor was that McCartney had died in a car accident prior to the release of the album "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," and had been replaced by a lookalike musician.

The rumor's primary mouthpiece, then a college student at Hofstra in New York, reports today that his celebrated detective work is still drawing as much interest as when it was featured in Life magazine in October, 1969.

Lou Yager, now the 24-year old vice-president of a radio station in Lakewood, N.J., said that radio stations across the country still invite him to talk over the air about the hoax. He recently addressed a convention for Beatles' diehards in New York and ABC-TV has indicated interest in a televised interview with the man who unmasked the Walrus.

"Everyone knows that it was a hoax," Yager asserts. "But people still love hearing the clues, even now after the Beatles denied it all and chalked it up to coincidence."

"I think it's still popular on college radio stations because there's an entirely new listening audience, a generation not raised on the Beatles but aware of their phenomenal impact. Today, Beatles' conventions are held across the nation and there are as many kids there who were in diapers during Beatlemania, as there are older fans."

Indeed, a Philadelphia radio station received more than 700 calls in 30 minutes after Yager ran through his repertoire of the audio and visual clues allegedly revealing McCartney's death. A spokesman at the station said the majority of the calls were from freshly smitten teens. And Yager said he's sold more than 1,000 cassette tapes of the audio clues (some of them gibberish when heard on the album but apparently significant when played backward) and a narrative by Yager delineating additional hints on various album sleeves.

But Yager is not just a fanatic sifting through ancient albums and playing tapes backwards. He contends the hoax was a latent commercial conspiracy "not by the Beatles necessarily but perhaps by their record company or management."

dnf seulC woleB

And now, the clues:

Six years ago, strong men grew weak and women fainted when Lou Yager finished his autopsy of dissected LPs and dust jackets. Young girls in London threatened to throw themselves from ledges after learning the clues; a news magazine in Czechoslovakia called Yager from behind the Iron Curtain for an interview.

Yager eventually called the Beatles' Seville Recording Studio in London and spoke with Beatle John Lennon about his investigation. (Asked to describe Lennon's reaction to the conversation, Yager said, "He sounded annoyed with me.")

Some of us peer intently at blown-up photos of Dealey Plaza taken the day John F. Kennedy died, others study the sleeve of the Sgt. Pepper's album as if it's the Rosetta Stone of the "Paul is dead" hoax.

The entire front cover of the Sgt. Pepper album is allegedly Paul's funeral attended by a multitude of celebrities.

1. At the bottom of the cover is an arrangement of yellow flowers Yager says is tribute to Paul's left-handed bass. The green bamboo struts simulate the four strings.

2. The open palm hand over Paul's head is an oriental symbol of death.

3. Inside the sleeve, Paul wears an emblem bearing the letters "OPD" which Yager says stands for "Officially Pronounced Dead," the way Americans are declared "Dead On Arrival." (The Beatles said it means ("Ontario Police Department").

4. On the rear cover, Paul is the only Beatle with his back to the camera and the words "within you, without you" over his head — a message, Yager feels, that bodes ill.

5. The name "Billy Shears" introduced in the album's title track in the name of a British schoolboy who won a McCartney lookalike contest years ago. Yager says if the rumor was right, Shears replaced Paul after his death.

In their next LP, "Magical Mystery Tour," Yager finds further clues:

1. Despite Lennon's appearance inside the sleeve as the Walrus, an Eskimo symbol of death, Yager says it was really Paul wearing that costume on the cover and that Lennon says as much in a later song, "Glass Onion."

2. Inside is a photo of Paul in military uniform behind a desk bearing a small sign with the words "I Was," whatever that means.

3. The photo of all four Beatles in white tie and tails shows three of them sporting red roses while Paul wears a black one.

4. Another group photo shows Paul with an open palm hand over his head.

At the very end of a single, "Strawberry Fields," Lennon garbles a grisley confession "I buried Paul."

The "White album," so-called because it had no name nor any art on the sleeve, just plain white covers, holds a feast of hints, according to Yager. The walrus clue in Glass Onion is here along with the following.

1. Portions of "Revolution No. 9," when played backward, comes out sounding like "Turn me on, dead man."

2. Gibberish between "I'm So Tired" and "Blackbird," played backward, says, "Paul is a dead man, miss him, miss him."

"These albums are listened to by producers, engineers and dozens of company personnel before release," says Yager. "Nothing is on those albums that wasn't meant to be there. You can't sneak all those things into an album past all those people."

On the sleeve of the "Abbey Road" album, Yager's imagination goes into overtime.

1. He alleges that George is portrayed as a gravedigger, Ringo as an undertaker, John is a parishioner and Paul, barefoot, is the corpse.

ALL IS CALM

ALL IS BRIGHT

The world stands still for a precious time, and remembers, and the Holiday Season glows with gifts of friendship and love, with beautiful lasting gifts.

To light the eyes and kindle the spirit are truly luxurious fragrance ensembles and many festive surprises, a glorious shining collection of pleasure, giving gifts for every woman and every pocketbook.

Kline's and Coty pleasure is yours too, and proudly so, for a Coty gift reflects beautifully on you.

The warm enticements of Emeraude. The frankly provocative fragrance, inviting as a promise of love—unforgettable as the woman who keeps it.

The tender temptations of L'Aimant, sweetly romantic as a given flower. A captivating blend of rare roses, jasmine and mystery.

The loving intimacy of L'Origan. The one fragrance really meant for two—subtly enchanting, delicately spiced with orange blossoms.

The dazzling joys of Imprevu. Dancing with young, delicious excitement—sparkling with smiles and laughter.

Beautiful inspirations for life's luxurious moments in the Parfum de Toilette atomizer spray.

To gift her with a fragrance jewel "One Precious Dram of Perfume." Irresistible impulses to make her Christmas merrier.

To pamper pretty skins: the fabulous Powder Pouf.

A gift to slip into a pretty stocking, the delightful Stocking Stuffers.

A classic fragrance candle is a splendid gift to grace any holiday table.

A touch of wild—a lot of wonderful musk in frankly seductive gift ideas. Exciting, sensuous, incredibly clinging, the "untamed" fragrance everyone wants to give or to get.

The fresh and fragrant wonders of Sweet Earth. The best loved natural fragrance in America. Long-lasting purely beautiful, stirring scents that nature wears herself from sunny meadows and quiet forests. Everybody's favorite today. Arrives in soft mists, Sweet Earth "Green House," "The Garden Set," "The Beehive," "The Good Angels."

Do all your shopping at Kline's Cosmetic Department. You will receive beauty, quality and utmost value in every gift.

Mary Wickes appears as Mrs. Tully, Doctor Joe Bogert's office nurse, in the new comedy series "Doc," premiering Saturday, Sept. 13, 7:30-8 p.m., on CBS.

The business side of the news

Krahenbuhl to Oregon law firm

KIM KRAHENBUHL

Kim Douglas Krahenbuhl, 223 E. Boyd St., Dixon, has recently been admitted to the practice of law and will be associated with the Oregon office of Fearer & Nye of Oregon and Rochelle.

Krahenbuhl, a graduate of Dixon High School in 1968, received his undergraduate degree from Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex. After receiving his bachelor of business administration degree in accounting, he attended Southern Methodist University School of Law and was awarded his degree of Juris Doctor in May of 1975.

While attending SMU as an Erin Bain Jones Scholar, he was president of University Men, a member of the All-University Judiciary Board, and worked in the Dallas District Attorney's Office.

Profit vs social need

NEW YORK (AP) — A few years ago the concept of investing on criteria of social responsibility rather than on profit alone caught hold among some institutional and individual investors.

Churches and universities began scrutinizing their portfolios to weed out investments that might conflict with ethical beliefs. Individual investors asked questions about a company's position on ecology and equality.

Several mutual funds were founded with the idea of combining good investment practices with what they considered to be the social good. If a company failed to meet certain social criteria they were barred from portfolios.

Only two such funds now attract much attention. Both have grown more slowly than their founders had anticipated. Managers of both funds have the feeling there might have been a bit more talk than commitment among the socially conscious.

Kenneth Oberman, president of the Dreyfus Third Century Fund, found that some of the nation's top companies wouldn't talk to his analysts.

Nevertheless, Third Century and Pax World haven't fared nearly as badly as have most mutual funds over the past three or four years, when the market in general deteriorated.

Both funds feel they have demonstrated there is no basic conflict in their approaches. Corporate social consciousness, they say, is now an established criterion of good management.

Third Century, which began operations on March 29, 1972 at $11.41 a share was selling at $10.24 at the end of September, a decline of 10.2 per cent, compared with 25 per cent for the N.Y. Stock Exchange composite index.

More recently, Third Century has been advancing strongly, gaining more than 50 per cent in asset value in the calendar year to September 25, and nearly 65 per cent over the 12 months to that date.

A product of the multibillion dollar Dreyfus Corp., the fund has more than $20 million of assets and, according to Howard Stein, who heads Dreyfus, is ready to grow strongly.

The concept, he said, has proven to be viable, and he maintains he is convinced that in the country's third century of existence the corporate goal will be to "translate power and wealth into a more fulfilling life for people."

Pax World is much smaller, having assets of less than $1 million. It was founded in August 1971, and since then the per share price has fallen from $10 to about $7.50, although it has paid $1.50 in dividends.

Pax World was founded by two staff members of the Board of Social Concern of the United Methodist Church, J. Elliott Corbett and Luther Tyson, and has a much more restrictive investment policy than does Third Century.

Still, in a popular ranking of 550 mutual funds for 1974, Pax World ranked 137, a position it achieved despite restrictions on investing in any weapons producers, which excludes most chemical and electronics companies, among others.

Krause appointed sales manager

The Woods Division of Heston Corporation, Oregon, Ill., has appointed Merrill Krause to the position of national sales manager.

Following his graduation from the University of Missouri's School of Agricultural Economics in 1954, Krause served two years in the army as a line officer. After his discharge in 1956 he began his career in sales and while working with companies like J. I. Case and Farmhand has, for the past 20 years, become experienced in all areas of sales and sales management involving all types of agricultural equipment.

In January, 1973, Krause joined Woods as northern branch manager, the position he has held up to his present promotion. As national sales manager he will be directing the Woods sales force which includes two branch sales offices with their respective managers and field sales managers plus 24 district sales managers. This sales force serves the companies network of more than 4,500 direct dealers throughout the United States and Canada.

Merril, his wife Jan, and three of their four children, Linda, Dave and Karen, reside at 4206 Dunbar Place, Rockford. Their daughter Debbie, and her husband, Lee, live in Carbondale.

Other promotions within the Woods sales organization include the appointments of Bill Brown to the position of Northern Branch Manager, and Ed Downs and Jim Schall, to the positions of Southern and Northern Field Sales Managers. All three men have been district managers with the company.

CPA office opens

Lindgren, Callihan, Weaver and Van Osdol, Certified Public Accountants, announced the opening of an office in the Central National Bank building, 302 First Ave., Sterling. John A. Van Osdol, CPA, former resident of Dixon, and currently living in Freeport, will be moving to Sterling in the near future to manage the office. The firm also maintains offices in Dixon, Rockford, and Freeport.

Merchants seek Yule salvation

NEW YORK (AP) — Of growing importance, almost by the day, will be the attitude of ordinary Americans toward economic news between now and the Christmas season.

In a secular context, that period is more than one of good will and charity. It is a period when merchants seek what for them is the biggest gift of all, a sales bonanza.

Whether or not they will have it depends, it is popularly argued, on whether the economic recovery continues and gains strength, but that explanation misses the point.

Of more significance is how the American consumer perceives economic conditions, which really is to say how he perceives his own financial condition. In the United States, the consumer is the economy — two-thirds of it, anyway.

It has been demonstrated before that even though the consumer might have cash in his or her pocket, that cash isn't necessarily spent if there are doubts about jobs or inflation or other aspects of the economy.

The consumer buying mood, which is said to be improving, still remains weak when compared to some of the peaks over the past 10 years. Fears about jobs are common, and so are doubts about future spending power.

These doubts are reflected in retail sales, which in the third week of September were only 6 per cent higher than a year earlier, on an annual, dollar basis. Because of 8.6 per cent inflation, that meant a real decline.

A good deal of the decline results from weakness in sales of certain big-ticket items, including furniture, whose markets have been damaged by the slow pace of homebuilding. But over-all, the exuberance merchants seek isn't evident.

For at least one large merchant the situation, unless corrected, might lead to an additional financial crisis. W. T. Grant Co., which lost $111.3 million in the first half of the year, needs big Christmas season sales to pay its nervous creditors.

Grant is being kept alive with a $540 million loan from 27 banks, a loan that will come up for payment or rewriting next July 30. Store officials say the critical factor will be Christmas sales.

In fact, Grant is depending heavily on improved consumer attitudes as well as cost-cutting to turn the tide. No longer does it expect to make a profit for the August-September-October quarter, but it does hope to be in the black for the final three months of its fiscal year, which ends Jan. 31.

It would ease the anxiety of merchants and consumers too, if they were able to make assumption they were reasonably certain would hold. But this is difficult at the moment; too many imponderables exist.

The Illinois Department of Transportation recently honored 26 employees who have been with the department for 25 years. Two of those honored were from the Dixon District Office. Pictured, left to right, are D. E. Sunmark, Dixon District engineer; Howard Morey, a recipient; Fred Petitti, a recipient; and Langhorne Bond, secretary of the Department of Transportation. 35th year announced Lavern H. Machaell, 1707 11th Ave., Sterling, is celebrating his 35th service anniversary with Commonwealth Edison Company's substation departments, currently in Dixon.

Machaell and his wife, Winifred, have been married 34 years. They have a son, Randell Lee, and two daughters, Mrs. David Shearburn and Mrs. Keith Bock, and five grandchildren.

A graduate of Rock Falls High School, he attends Trinity United Methodist Church in Sterling. He is a U.S. Navy veteran. Hobbies include fishing, coin collecting and sporting events.

Swiss Family Robinson finds going rough

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — The men and women who run the rating services for TV shows have a problem this season — but they may not know it.

The problem is caused by the new family hour concept. Some shows designed for that time period are really kiddie shows. They are not meant to appeal to an adult audience, and yet the rating services are still using their same old sample. And critics are using their same old criteria.

"We've gotten bad reviews," says Martin Milner, of ABC's Swiss Family Robinson. "Forget the reviews and the ratings — we're a kiddie show and the kids love it."

"I hate critics," says Cameron Mitchell, who plays Jeremiah on the show. "I'd like to bomb the L.A. Times (whose critic gave the show a bad review). All the Times' critics like are shows about homosexuals."

Mitchell and the rest believe the show is doing what it intended to do — amuse the children. To that end, it is successful.

"I think," Mitchell says, "our show is important. It has good values for kids. The Waltons has good values, too, but I don't think they'd understand that show in Germany, for example, while we're selling all over the world. And here in the U.S., ABC has cleared 178 out of its 182 stations, which is remarkable."

The Swiss Family Robinson is the work of Irwin Allen, a veteran TV creator and producer, who also did such movies as "The Poseidon Adventure." He's an expert at building an action-packed show.

This series is a skillful work, well-produced and well-made, and it makes no pretense of being anything but what it is — a kid's show. Yet it takes a lot of time, effort and money to turn it out.

At the 20th Century-Fox studio, I watched them shoot a scene. They were in the family's island tree house. This is an exact duplicate of the tree house they have built at the Fox ranch, miles away. For each show, they shoot for seven days, usually five days at the ranch, two at the studio.

"I love the show," Mitchell says. "I like doing it because I like animals and I like kids. We've had a 600-pound Bengal tiger on the show, and goats and, of course, our parrot."

"I think everybody likes the idea of the show. All of us would like to get away from this crummy world. If I could find an island like the Robinsons found I'd go there today. I think the question eventually will be why do they want to leave? They've found Paradise."

For Milner, after years as a cop on Adam-12, this is harder work in one way, easier in another.

"I like the costume I wear here a lot better," he says. "It's a lot more comfortable and it doesn't matter if it's a little wrinkled. But the work is much harder — twice as hard because the show is twice as long."

For all of them, it's a struggle at the moment. It always is, with a new show, but this time they are pioneering a new concept. It's a show for children, but the ratings are still judging it as though it were for adults.

It isn't wasy, being a pioneer.

HIGH ADVENTURE on The Swiss Family Robinson is trying to beat the critics and ratings.

Two new ways to save taxes

The new Pension Reform Law may help you save a lot of tax dollars when you save for retirement.

If you're not covered by a qualified pension plan where you work, you can set aside up to $1500 a year in a tax-deferred Individual Retirement Account (IRA).

If you're self-employed, you can put aside up to $7500 a year in your own tax-deferred Keogh HR-10 retirement plan.

You don't pay federal income taxes on the funds set aside in these plans until you retire. But your plan must comply with the requirements of the new law.

Congress checks blackout charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, D-Mass., chairman of the House communications subcommittee, wants the sports leagues to show him how the television antiblackout legislation hurts them.

Macdonald's defiance is directed especially to the National Football League.

"Nobody thinks the football leagues are the bad guys," he said last month, but for them to resist making the law permanent is, in his opinion, "chutzpah at its highest."

Professional hockey and basketball gave their views this week, during the first of three sessions on Macdonald's bill to make permanent the three-year-old law on the lifting of TV blackouts.

Don Ruck, vice president of the National Hockey League, and Simon Gourdine, deputy commissioner of the National Basketball Association, were the scheduled witnesses, along with Gerald S. Blum, station manager of WQXI, Atlanta.

Pete Rozelle, NFL commissioner, appeared Thursday with Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn estifying Friday.

The antiblackout law prohibits home games of professional football, baseball, basketball and hockey from being blacked out on local commercial TV if they are sold out 72 hours in advance. Besides making the law permanent, the Macdonald bill would change the 72-hour cutoff for postseason games of baseball, basketball and hockey to 24 hours.

Last week, Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Senate communications subcommittee, along with Sen. J. Glenn Beall, R-Md., introduced a bill to extend the current law for another three years.

Macdonald launched into criticism of the NFL, expressing amazement that the league is complaining it is harmed by the law.

"I shed no tears for the NFL and their financial plight," he said, condemning the NFL's claim that the antiblackout has increased the number of no-shows at games as "propaganda line" and a "frivolous complaint."

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Whatever became of Princess Yasmin, the daughter of Rita Hayworth and the late Prince Aly Khan?—MARY BOHUS, Taber, Alta., Can.

Rita's friends tell me that Yasmin is studying opera in New York. She comes out to Los Angeles frequently to visit her mother, however.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me who sings the song on The Family Holvak, and if it's the same person who sang the song for the show, Sierra?—JERRY BRINK, Brush Valley, Pa.

Denny Brooks is the voice who sings The Family Holvak's theme, "Look How Far We've Come." And, yes, Brooks also sang the Sierra theme. Since both shows did poorly, maybe poor Denny will become known as "The Voice of Death."

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me where I could purchase a tape or record of the theme songs from M.A.S.H. and The Mary Tyler Moore Show?—MRS. L.K.F., Detroit, Mich.

It's going to be tough. The M.A.S.H. theme was once recorded on Capitol, but I'm told the record is out of print, and Capitol has no plans for re-issuing it. The M.A.S.H. people are trying to get somebody else to record it. As for Mary's theme, that tune, written by Sonny Curtis, had two recordings—a single by Sonny on Ovation, and as part of a Sammy Davis Jr. album of TV themes. Both are old, and may be hard to get. Your best bet is to try used record shops.

DEAR DICK: Regarding your comment about Mark She-ra—"... he's not Italian, he's Jewish"—let me say that you have fallen into the 2,000-year-old trap of confusing nationality and religion. There is no Jewish nationality. Your comment is as absurd as saying "he's not French, he's Protestant" or "he's not British, he's Catholic." There is no Protestant nationality, no Catholic nationality, no Jewish nationality.—EUGENE SWEIG, Southfield, Mich.

I sit corrected. You are absolutely right. I shall try to keep my foot out of that trap in the future.

DEAR DICK: In 1935, I saw a movie in which the song, "When I Grow Too Old to Dream" was featured. Do you know the name of the movie, who starred in it, and is it still around? I would like to see it on TV.—MRS. C. LEATHERMAN, Ponca City, Okla.

That beautiful song came from the '35 film, "The Night Is Young," starring Ramon Novarro, Evelyn Laye, Charlie Butterworth and Una Merkel. I doubt you'll see it again on TV; it's 40 years old and that's too old for TV.

DEAR DICK: How did David McCallum become invisible, or is it true?—DARREN MACRAE, Kensington, P.E.I., Can.

Are you pulling my visible leg? Nobody can become invisible, at least not yet. If you're referring to how the trick is done on TV, they use a process called Chroma-Key. If you mean, how did the character he plays become invisible, he supposedly discovered a system of breaking down molecular energy. Basically, it's supposed to be the same gizmo by which the Star Trekkers transport themselves from space ship to planet.

DEAR DICK: Can you please tell me the height of Johnny Carson and Jack Palance?—KAREN LAWSON, Colo.

Johnny is listed at 5 feet 11, Jack at 6 feet 4. No matter how you slice it, Jack is taller.

DEAR DICK: Could you please tell me why Rose Marie of the Hollywood Squares always wears that black ribbon bow in her hair?—CATHERINE DAVIS, Grove Hill, Ala.

I asked her producer who said, facetiously, "It keeps her hair on her head." So I asked Rose Marie who said, "I've never told anyone. It's a very personal thing that I'd rather not talk about."

DEAR DICK: I have three questions about the show, Movin' On. Was the show moved to the east because Frank Converse disliked the west? In last year's shows, wasn't Sonny's last name spelled Pruett, instead of Pruitt? And what color are Claude Akins's eyes?—DONNA WILSON, West Texas City, Tex.

First, the move East was simply to give them a change of scenery. Second, you have good eyes. In the pilot, the name was Pruett, but whoever painted the name on the truck misspelled it so everything had to be changed to conform to the misspelling. Third, very blue.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me why they took Concentration off TV? In my opinion, it was educational for many children. It surely helped my mentally retarded child.—MARIE CODY, Steubenville, Ohio.

The show isn't off the air. They are now taping new editions. It is a syndicated show, so perhaps your local station dropped it. You'll have to take that up with them.

McCoy takes a gamble

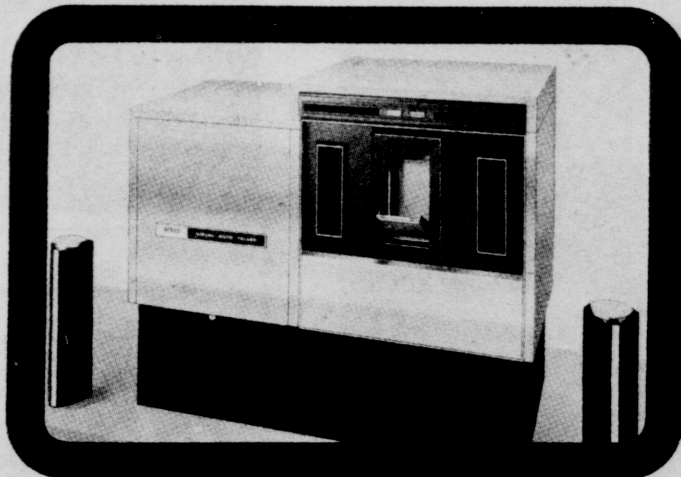

McCoy (series star Tony Curtis) meets a temporary setback when he loses big in a dice game, but fate brings a fat score when an attorney asks him to recover $100,000 lost to a team of cardsharps in "Double-Take," a two-hour "McCoy" colorcast on channels 6, 17 "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie." 8-10 p.m.

Guest stars in this comedy film include Harry Guardino, Jackie Coogan, Nita Talbot, Val Avery and Fiona Lewis.

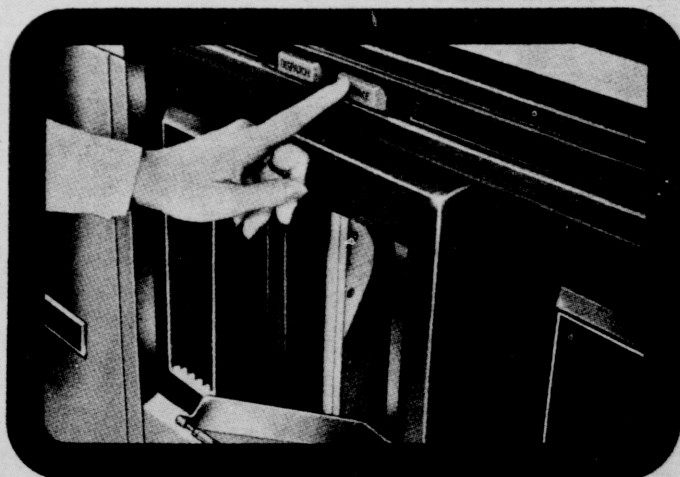

Attorney Glen Phillips calls on McCoy for help when he is taken for $100,000 by a team of cardsharps in a "friendly" game of gin. McCoy promises his childhood friend he'll recover the money and sets up his marks, Burt Mather and his associate Sheila. The caper involves Mather in a fake jewelry heist McCoy plans with help from cohorts Gideon Gibbs (series co-star Roscoe Lee Browne) and Skippy, a garage owner crony. The ruse goes amiss when a gangster named Turk muscle in on the action.

Invisible man to aid of cleaning woman

When the cleaning woman of the Klæ Corporation has no place to go for help in the alleged frame-up of her imprisoned son, Dan Westin (David McCallum) agrees to intervene, in "Go Directly To Jail," on "The Invisible Man," Monday, from 7 to 8 p.m. on Channel 6. (Note: This episode was rescheduled from Oct. 20.)

Convinced that her son, Leland, has been falsely imprisoned, Mrs. McCallister solicits help from her friend Westin and the Klæ Resource. Unaware that McCallister is a federal narcotics undercover agent posing as a prisoner, Westin blunders into a drug investigation that is about to culminate in the arrest of the prison warden.

California fashions for men

The California way of life, more leisurely and casual than any other way of living in the United States, has begun to influence the dressing habits of people well beyond the West Coast. Some California fashions for men, in fact, are now important nationwide trend setters.

Levi's were the first California-inspired fashions, and today's ubiquitous leisure suit first gained acceptance a few years ago in California. West Coast manufacturers take great pride in the fact that they were the first to mass produce and popularize the leisure suit, which has become the All-American fashion classic of the 70's in men's clothing. The leisure suits featured here are all in "Trevira" polyester and blends of "Trevira" and other natural or man-made fibers for Spring 1976. These easy-care, wash and wear fabrics lend themselves beautifully to the casualness that is California.

Among other outstanding men's fashions emanating from the West Coast are the bold, colorful print shirts and elegant small prints that are making waves from Coast to Coast. Most of these are in soft, lightweight fabrics such as the silk-like "polyester" which is shown here.

Suits, blazer suits and sports separates from the West Coast are leading the national trend towards unstructured, casual wear for business now as well as weekends. Soft, pastel shades dominate.

Aside from their own unique innovations, California men's wear manufacturers know how to translate European and East Coast styling and intermingle both for a unique, West Coast look.

The rest of the nation has often referred to the state of California as the "wave of the future" in many arenas of national life.

Now, California men's wear is beginning to be recognized on its own as the fashion "wave of the future."

California's own fashion inspiration, the leisure suit, is more popular than ever and becoming a refined classic. The rayon leisure suit shown here, highlighted by detailed stitching, has an overall neat and elegant look.

(At right) This natural looking cotton corduroy suit in a fabric is lightweight enough for California's sunny days. Suit has wide lapels, and close-fitting European-styled slacks.

Guidelines for house-guests

Dear Ann Landers: Can you give some general guidelines for being a good house-guest? So many people abuse the privilege.

A few words from you would mean a lot to thousands of harried hosts and hostesses. Thanks a lot, Ann. — Pooped In Peoria Dear P.: Rule Number One: Don't assume you are welcome unless you've been invited — no matter how close you feel to the host and hostesses — relatives included.

Two: If you are invited for a week, stay five days. If you are invited for two weeks, stay ten days. In other words, shorten your visit so they'll wish you had stayed longer rather than rejoice at the sight of your leaving.

Three: Pitch in and help with the housework and cooking if your help is needed and wanted. If not, stay out of the way. Don't take over. (Of course, you always leave the bathroom clean. This means tub or shower stall, wash basin, etc.)

Four: If you are eating at home mostly, buy some choice steaks and fancy fruit as a surprise. And treat the host and hostess to at least one meal in a restaurant. Five: Spend some time elsewhere, even if it means going to a movie or taking a five-mile hike. Every host and hostess needs a few hours or an evening of "freedom" to relax by themselves.

Six: Either bring a gift when you arrive or send one when you get home. It needn't be lavish, but it should say "thank you for the hospitality."

Dear Ann Landers: Well, here I am feeling great and very much alive.

I read a while back in your column about a guy who quit dope. He said he had flashbacks, feelings of being stoned unexpectedly even though he'd been off the junk for three months. Well, I laughed till I was sick and ached all over. The next day when I thought about it it scared the living day-lights out of me. That's when I decided to quit dope for good.

I only wish for one thing now — that my brother would get off speed. I pray he will wise up and return to the world I found is still beautiful. I could kick myself for wasting two of my sixteen years to discover how lousy and phony the drug scene really is. I will always be grateful to you for placing that column where I could read it. It's a great world and I'm glad I'm a part of it once again. Just sign me — Thank God I Read Ann Landers!

Dear Friend: A letter like yours makes my day. Thank you for letting me know.

Dear Ann Landers: Maybe this will sound like chicken feed compared to the serious problems that cross your desk daily but it's been bugging me a lot lately and I'd like your opinion. Why would a bright, successful professional man who is well respected in the community show up with obviously dyed brown hair when for the last 20 years his hair has been a beautiful steel-gray? Does he think people don't remember what he looked like?

I (and several others) were shocked to see this sight. Of course it made him look older, not younger because now all his wrinkles stand out. Why? Why? — Baffled In Birmingham

Dear B. In B.: Maybe the poor fellow never read Robert Burns: "O wad some Pow'r the giftie gie us, To see ourselves as others see us!"

(Copyright 1975, Field Enterprises, Inc.)

Clothes to grow with children

Reduce demands on the family budget by selecting children's clothing with growth features, advises Marjorie Sohn, University of Illinois Extension clothing specialist.

The growing child needs clothing that maintains both good fit and appearance over a reasonable length of time. Buying garments too large with the idea that your child will grow into them is often false economy, Ms. Sohn says.

Furthermore, this practice may have a negative psychological effect if the garments are so big that they become uncomfortable and unattractive.

Careful selection of clothing with growth features will help insure satisfaction in wear and maintenance of good fit and appearance over an extended period of time.

Ms. Sohn suggests the following features and designs which will allow garments to grow with your child.

—Deep hems or tucks in dresses and skirts and wide cuffs on trousers allow for adjustment in length. If necessary, use rickrack, ribbon, or other trim to hide old hem line.

—Adjustable long straps on jumpers and overalls.

—Buttons that can be lowered on blouses or shirts to increase bodice length on garments that button on at the waist.

—Extra-long shirts and blouses.

—Pleated or gathered skirts or pants with adjustable or elasticized waistlines.

—Raglan or kimono sleeves rather than set-in sleeves.

—Wide underarm or leg seams to be let out as needed.

—Wide seams at center back of pants.

—Knit or stretch fabrics with built-in "give" to allow for growth.

—Fullness in the form of gathers and tucks.

IN LAYERS

Baby-wale corduroys in one color make up a new feeling in pant and skirt suits. Wear these with matching vests.

SOFTNESS

Even layered dresses have a softened look via the fabrics and the use of feminine details such as ruffles and pin tucking.

TOPPERS

Still looking for a new coat? Try on the new well-tailored tweeds or full-length duffles. Pea coats in solid colors and a variety of fabrics for day and evening wear also are worth considering as additions to your winter wardrobe.

Would-be assassins were refused help

By LEW KOCH

Dr. David A. Rothstein is a psychiatrist who has spent more than a decade studying people who have threatened the lives of Presidents of the United States. For several reasons he is not optimistic about the nation's ability to avoid such horrendous incidents in the future.

First, Dr. Rothstein points out, in almost every recent assassination attempt, the potential assassin tried to obtain some kind of psychotherapy before the attempt—and failed to get the help he or she needed.

Dr. Rothstein, a consultant to the Warren Commission, believes there is strong evidence that Lee Harvey Oswald's mother left New York City because she was unable to obtain long term, consistent psychotherapy for her son.

Of 10 men placed in the Medical Center for Federal Prisoners in Springfield, Mo., for threatening the life of the President all, according to Dr. Rothstein who studied these men, had sought to be "taken care of"—either through enlistment in the military or through commitment to a mental institution.

Today the files of the Secret Service are bulging with the names of people who may be a threat to the life of the President. Yet at the same time, the Federal government and the states are cutting their mental health budgets.

"We chlorinate the water before we have a cholera epidemic," says Dr. Rothstein. "We spend billions on sanitary systems." But, he notes, we spend little in the way of preventative medicine in the mental health area.

We are a pragmatic nation. We believe in what we can actually see. We believe that a person in pain because of a broken arm has a right to get the medical care he needs. But we do not extend the same right to a person with a twisted or damaged psyche. We cannot "see" the derangement before the damage is done.

If we need more than an altruistic reason for preventative mental health, perhaps we should think of mental health as a possible growth industry, a source of employment.

Although Dr. Rothstein is not an economist, he wonders if there wouldn't be a "ripple effect" in mental health care. From his experience at the Michael Reese Medical Center and elsewhere, Dr. Rothstein points out that the bulk of health spending does not go to doctors but instead to nurses, aides, technicians, dieticians, cooks, dishwashers, maintenance men, janitors, engineers, electricians, construction workers and so on. Doesn't that create jobs, asks Dr. Rothstein?

We are already paying a heavy price for ignoring the psychological pain people have. We spend billions on police and prisons yet allocate little for finding out and treating the reasons for their violence.

The majority of people in the nation can, more or less effectively, cope with their own hostility and violence. But there are many who reach out for help in coping with those feelings—and find nothing. We may save a dollar or two by skipping on mental health facilities, but in the end, one way or another, we will have to pay for it. And the cost may be very dear indeed.

Safety play loses overtrick

By Oswald & James Jacoby Fourth-suit forcing is a modern invention. We hope it will never replace horse-and-buggy bidding.

North's two-diamond call is an example. He didn't know what to bid so he tried two diamonds to see what might happen.

This caused South to bid two and three notrump and North had to decide what to do. Finally he passed, in the hope that South could handle the diamond suit by himself. It turned out that South could.

East won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and returned the suit. South won and led the queen of spades covered by West's king and dummy's ace. At this point South decided to take an unusual safety play. He led a low heart from dummy, and played the eight spot-spot from his own hand.

This safety play cost him an overtrick, but South did not

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures. The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction.

Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Sadat expresses displeasure

CHICAGO (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said today he is displeased with President Ford's foreign aid package, which would provide $1.5 billion in military aid to Israel but none to his country.

Sadat, who is spending 10 days in the United States, called on Ford to enforce an "even-handed policy in the Middle East."

Ford unveiled Thursday a $4.7-billion foreign aid package that included $3.38 billion for Mideast countries. The proposal would send $1.5 billion in military aid and $740 million in economic aid to Israel, while Sadat's country would get $750 million in economic assistance only.

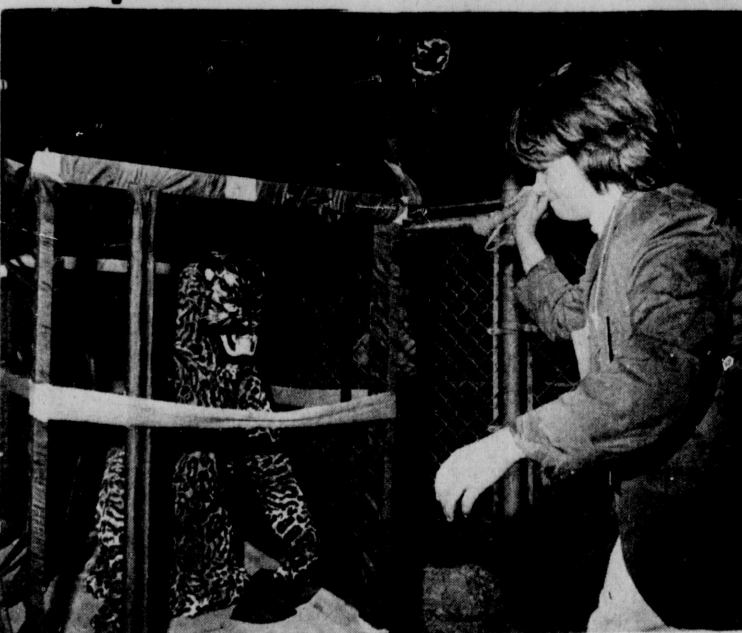

At a news conference, Sadat also said that the Arab states have agreed to oppose Israel if it enters the fighting in Lebanon.

"All the Arab nations, represented by their foreign ministers, have agreed that if Israel tries to exploit the situation, the whole Arab world would be against Israel," Sadat said.

Conroy for

"there is no way to keep valuations equalized without from time to time reverting to reappraisals," suggested Conroy.

The going practice for establishing assessments which vary from the reappraisal conducted in 1962 has been to raise the valuation of property which has been purchased since then to an amount near to that of the selling price.

Thus, similar valued properties may carry widely varying assessments if one has been sold in recent years and the other has not.

It is contended the individual who purchases property should not be required to pay a higher amount of property taxes than an owner of a similarly valued parcel of real estate which has not changed ownership for many years.

However, in practice, this does occur.

Conroy insists governments levying taxes to pay for the services it provides to citizens are obligated to extract funds from taxpayers on a basis which is equally fair to each.

"The real value of property that the Board of Review establishes is what taxes are based upon but what value the supervisor of assessments and the Board of Review determine is not what taxes are.

If a person's taxes are unjust is not solely from the blame of assessors or the Board of Review, the inequity comes from the way the money is used.

"High taxes result on how the money is used rather on the assessments," declared Conroy.

He exclaimed taxes may be derived from equitable assessments but the revenues from taxpayers may not be used for purposes which fund equal services for all and this "results in an unequal situation."

He estimates if the County Board should decide to ask the supervisor of assessments to conduct a reappraisal of property in the county and authorize him to add personnel to his office it would take two years to accomplish.

"I don't believe we can or should take this much time to achieve equity in valuating property for taxation," said Conroy.

He also suggested if the supervisor of assessments were expected to continually maintain the equality of assessments determined by a reappraisal, it would require "beefing" up his office and "in the long run will cost more money than a professional appraisal."

Conroy noted there are 23,000 parcels of real estate in the county and called it "unthinkable that the present supervisor of assessments and his present staff be expected to maintain the equality of valuations throughout the county."

The member of the Board of Review also observed the publicity created by the Illinois Supreme Court ruling that property must be assessed at 50 per cent of its full market value and the action by the General Assembly to lower the valuation percentage to 33 1/3rd per cent has made people aware of inequitable assessments. "Ten or 15 years ago few people knew about the problems and unfairness of real estate assessment and valuations used, but that is different now," he concluded.

Conroy fears either the state or the courts may issue an edict the new law be observed.

"If this happens, I feel counties which have shown good faith in taking action to establish equitable assessments will fare better if legal action is taken against them.

"Counties who take no action to try to equalize property valuations could be embarrassed," he stated.

Conroy believes the task of reappraising the property should be given to a professional firm because its staff people will be better able to understand and to interpret findings made by them than those who are not experienced appraisers.

He also noted appraisals of property are made for various purposes such as buying or selling, for estates or for financing and suggested the basis for the estimates of value of the property may vary slightly depending on the purpose for determining the worth of the real estate.

"Only the county is responsible for evaluating property for taxing purposes. The job to be done by the supervisor of assessments and by the Board of Review is to make a monetary valuation which is like taking an inventory of the county," Conroy outlined.

The evaluation made by the county is the only one which is made "for the reasons to equalize each valuation with all other property in the county," continued Conroy.

"Outside professional appraisers are able to work with greater objectivity than any locally employed persons," commented Conroy.

He said he believed the cost will range from $150,000 to $190,000.

The member of the Board of Review estimated it will take a professional firm about one year to accomplish the reappraisal.

Turning to criticism by opponents of employing a professional appraisal firm, Conroy observed some have asked, "Why not hire local people to do the job?" He replied it will require the county to hire more people and to school them in the functioning of the office and orient them to the assessments for taxation which would be costly.

He noted after being trained and making a reappraisal if they were not kept on they payroll, the situation would revert to what now exists.

"Hiring professionals to do the task will be less expensive and will result in getting a better job accomplished," declared Conroy.

He mentioned another objection to taxes is the manner in which they are assessed. In answer, he pointed out township assessors are publicly elected officials and the supervisor of assessments can only advise them about assessing property in the townships.

Any change in the procedure, "awaits the General Assembly to change state law," observed Conroy.

Faber against

using a productivity factor, "but does not say how much a factor productivity should be."

"Another thing I am concerned about is if the county goes ahead and hires a professional firm to appraise the property here for about $190,000, it may be only a short time before it is thrown out because it did not use any productivity factor in determining values," suggested Faber.

The new bill, according to Faber refers to "real cash value of property," but does not say how this shall be determined. He noted real cash value may be different than full fair cash value which was the directive in the old legislation.

Default by NYC should have little effect on Illinois bond sales

By BARRY HANSON
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — New York City's impending bankruptcy is having an unsettling effect on the municipal bond market generally, but should not reduce the salability of high quality Illinois bonds, experts say.

These specialists also agreed that cash flow problems experienced by Illinois in recent weeks would have no appreciable effect on the high rating of the state's bonds unless the cash problems were to persist.

"All bonds that are being offered for sale these days are feeling the effect of the New York City impending default," said Bob Sharp of the Chicago bond counsel firm of Chapman and Cutler.

"We may all think it's out of proportion and perhaps unwarranted in certain instances, like a good triple-A credit like the state of Illinois, but the market isn't logical," he said. "The market reacts to emotion."

Illinois, as most states and cities, borrows money by issuing bonds which are paid back by taxpayers with interest over a period of years. The money generally is used for things with a long life, such as highways and buildings.

It was massive borrowing through bonds and an inability to pay those bonds off that has led the nation's largest city to the brink of bankruptcy. Congress currently is considering whether federal assistance should be given to the city.

Ken Clauson, vice president of Goldman Sachs & Co., a Chicago investment banking firm, said he believes Illinois can benefit indirectly from New York's problems, which have made investors more quality conscious.

"You can see the buyers who are in the market going for the higher grade bonds," said Clauson. He serves on a voluntary Illinois bonds enjoy an AAA rating, the highest possible.

This top rating was confirmed in a Moody's report dated Oct. 17, although the review noted that the balance in the state's general fund dropped to zero on at least two occasions this month, Sharp said.

Sharp said he believed the review was conducted especially because of the publicity surrounding the cash flow problems.

Glaring gap exists in campaign disclosure

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Less than four months before Illinois' primary election, a major gap exists in the state regulations which are supposed to require public disclosure of campaign financing.

This gap, caused by inaction of the Illinois Board of Elections, is helping the powerful Democratic organization of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley to keep its finances secret, the Associated Press learned Thursday.

For more than a year, the board has failed to comply with a judge's order to revise three of its regulations interpreting the state's 1974 Campaign Disclosure Act.

Without clear regulations from the board it is uncertain whether state law requires political committees and organizations which support more than one candidate to disclose their contributions and expenditures.

Such groups, including many ward, township and county political organizations, play key roles in many campaigns. It is money contributed to the Democratic party of Cook County, for example, which fuels Daley's legendary election-winning machine.

The board, responsible for administering the state's election laws, issued regulations last year exempting political committees from the disclosure law because they were not organized to support particular candidates.

Atty. Gen. William J. Scott filed suit challenging this interpretation of the law, and on Oct. 18, 1974, Circuit Court Judge Paul C. Verticchio of Springfield ruled the three board regulations pertaining to this question null and void.

The judge ordered the board to draw up new regulations "forthwith." But this has not been done.

Michael Levinson, the board's chief attorney, said in an interview that the board was waiting to revise its regulations until Verticchio complied with a request to "clarify" his decision.

However, Verticchio said he did not know a clarification had been requested because Levinson never took the elementary step of notifying the judge's office that the request had been filed. The judge said this step is essential because he is not automatically notified by the court clerk's office when such motions are submitted.

Levinson declined to say why he did not notify Verticchio after filing his motion. Asked if he ever intended to tell the judge about the request, Levinson said he would have to consult with the board.

Board Chairman Franklin Lunding said the board had not issued new regulations because of other problems, including court suits challenging the constitutionality of the way its members are selected. He said the board might begin the process at a meeting Nov. 21 in Springfield.

During the year of board inaction, according to a complaint filed with the board in August, Daley's organization has been collecting and spending thousands of dollars without submitting the disclosure reports required by law.

The board refused to hold a public hearing on this complaint, filed by a Chicago citizens' group, the Better Government Association.

The BGA has challenged this decision, and the case is currently before the Appellate Court. However, a final decision is unlikely before the state's March 16 primary election.

The head of the BGA said the board's delay in revising its regulations had been deliberate.

"This is one more attempt by the board to scuttle the new Illinois campaign disclosure law," said Terrence Brunner, executive director of the citizens' group.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas Price said he knew the board of elections had asked Judge Verticchio for a clarification of his order, "but we didn't know they were delaying a revision of their regulations just because of that."

Price acknowledged that his office could have brought the request to Judge Verticchio's attention and had the matter disposed of months ago.

"I guess we're going to have to do something," Price said. He declined to say exactly what his action would be.

The Associated Press reported Thursday from Washington that the Justice Department declined to force Daley's organization to comply with federal campaign finance reporting laws last year.

Government sources said the Cook County Democratic party became legally obliged to register and to file periodic financial reports with the secretary of the Senate when it donated $5,000 to the losing Senate campaign of then Rep. Roman C. Pucinski in 1972.

However, the sources said, Justice Department lawyers saw the failure to report as only a "technical" violation of the law. They closed he case last October without bringing charges or requiring the Daley organization to comply with the legal requirements.

governor's school aid vetoes. Daley also backed a recent unsuccessful attempt to reapportion Mikva out of his suburban congressional district.

In releasing the letter, de Grazia and Green said Walker knew of its contents and apparently was in sympathy with their charges against Daley.

Earlier Thursday, de Grazia said Daley's endorsement of the presidential candidacy of Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., indicates there may be some sort of political deal between Daley and Stevenson.

In addition, they criticized the mayor's treatment of independent Chicago-area Democrats—particularly former Alderman William Singer and U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-Ill.

Daley reportedly compared Singer's recent, highly critical report on Chicago schools to the work of Nazi propaganda minister Paul Joseph Goebbels. Singer's report was used by Walker forces to defend the crats.

"In the many years you have been chairman, rumors of deals between you and Republican candidates have been widespread," the letter continued. "However, not until your recent public statement did we give them credence."

When Daley spoke last week before the Illinois General Assembly to urge the override of Walker's veto of additional aid to Illinois public schools, he said he regretted that Ogilvie lost.

Green and de Grazia also accused Daley of failing to take ered by hand Thursday to Daley's party office.

"Time and again," the letter said, "you have placed yourself and the well-being of your cronies above the welfare of the party and the principles of the Democratic party."

The letter accused Daley of both open and covert disloyalty to his fellow Democrats, saying, "Your recent statement that a Republican, Richard Ogilvie, should have been elected governor over a Democrat, Dan Walker, is only the latest exhibition of actions repugnant to all loyal, dedicated Demo-

Walker aides demand Daley resignation

CHICAGO (AP) — The political skirmishing between Gov. Daniel Walker and Mayor Richard J. Daley has escalated sharply with the release of a letter from Walker's top aides demanding that Daley resign as chairman of the Cook County Democratic party.

Broomstick Brigade

Halloween did not become a popular celebration in the United States until late in the 19th Century. Yet all the American colonies had laws against witchcraft from the start. The most famous American witchcraft trials occurred in 1692 in a Massachusetts village. The witch hunt began when the family of Rev. Samuel Parris began to act strangely. Tituba, the minister's West Indian slave, and two other women were accused of bewitching them. Within four months, as the witchcraft scare spread, hundreds were accused, arrested and tried; 20 people were executed. Reaction to the executions was swift, and those imprisoned were released in May, 1693.

DO YOU KNOW — Where did the famous witch trials of 1692 take place?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Horse racing began in America about 100 years before the Declaration of Independence.

Car into river; Tampico woman dies

STERLING — A 20-year-old Tampico woman is dead this morning and another is hospitalized after their car plunged off the First Avenue Bridge between Sterling and Rock Falls at 1:06 a.m. today.

Dead on arrival at Community General Hospital, Sterling, was Carol J. Waldron, 20, Tampico. A passenger in the Waldron car, Shirley M. Green, 18, Tampico, was treated and released from the Sterling Hospital.

According to witnesses and police reports, the auto was southbound on the bridge when it swerved into the west side of the bridge, crossed to the east side, jumped the curb and railing and plunged into the river. The car is believed to have skidded 74 to 79 feet from the west to east side of the bridge near the south end of the bridge. Rock Falls officials were the first to arrive on the scene.

An investigation into the accident is continuing.

Youths hurt as car hits pole in park

Two Dixon youths were treated Tuesday at KSB Hospital for injuries received in a one-car accident on Page Park Drive near Borden's Field.

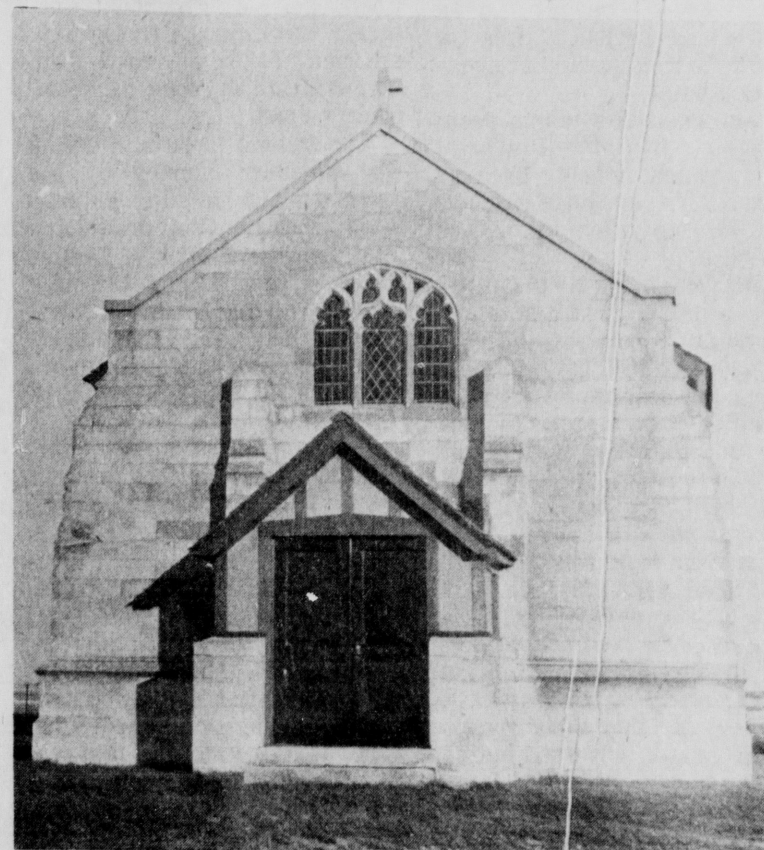

Albert Helfrich, 16, 1223 W. Third St., and a passenger in his car, Jerry May, 18, 523 Fourth Ave., were taken by Dixon Rural Ambulance to KSB Hospital where they were treated following the accident.

According to reports, the Helfrich auto was westbound on Page Park Drive in the middle of a curve, heading north, when May fell from the car. The auto skidded on loose gravel and went off the roadway, where it struck a utility pole. Dixon Police, who investigated the accident, Thursday ticketed Helfrich for traveling too fast for conditions.

Two youths face charges

Alan Walker, 18, 319 Douglas Ave., and a passenger in his auto, Kenneth Kent, 17, 711 N. Ottawa Ave., were charged on two counts Thursday.

Walker and Kent were charged with consumption of alcohol as a minor and illegal transportation of alcohol with a broken seal after Lee County deputies stopped their auto on Sink Hollow Road north of Ill. 2. Both have posted bond and will appear in court at a later date. Another passenger, in the 1969 Rambler driven by Walker, was not arrested by authorities.

After Kewanee victory

Dukes challenge Rockets tonight

By JIM FOX
Telegraph Sports Writer

Dixon goes into tonight's home non-conference battle versus Rock Falls at A.C. Bowers Field filled with enthusiasm and high spirits coming off victors last week in the 37-7 shellacking of Kewanee in the NCIC season finale.

Rock Falls has not been able to go into a game with a win at its back since the opening week when the Rockets downed Morton. Since then it has been seven straight defeats for coach Bill Vance and his Rockets.

Rock Falls is not to be sized up with its record though. The Rockets have been in every game, losing only by close scores including last week's loss to Mendota 12-6 in overtime.

The Rockets backfield will consist of all seniors, with 6'0"-170 Greg Murand at quarterback. Murand is 20 of 48 for 214 yards in the passing department this season.

The big half-back is Jeff Murray (6-1"-170), who has accumulated 535 yards in 132 carries.

ries as the Rockets leading rusher. The other backs will be Bob Brockman (5'7"-150) and Jeff Wescott (5'8"-169).

Don Thompson (6-3"-180), the lone junior on the offensive team, will be at one end while Dave Arvola (6'2"-185) occupies the other end position. Tackles are Pat McDonnell (6'5"-240) and Jim Dezman (5'8"-215). Tim Cairns (6'0"-171) and Paul O'Neil (5'10"-180) will be the guards. Jim Jones (5'11"-185) will center the ball.

The super tough defensive team consists of ends Ed Moeller, a senior, (6'0"-175) and junior Dan Menchaca (5'7"-155). Defensive tackles tonight will be Jones and Arvola while McDonnell and junior Rory Fullmer (5'11"-175) are positioned at the defensive guard.

Cornerbacks Brian Berogan, a junior, (5'5"-136) and senior Terry Nailor (5'10"-165), senior safeties Tom McNitt (5'11"-145) and Rick Brushhaber (6'2"-180) and middle linebacker Wescott round out the defensive Rockets squad.

Dixon will be led by sophomore quarterback Mike Swinton, who played an outstanding game against Kewanee. Senior Mike LeBlanc and junior Mike McDonald will be in the backfield. Both are coming off slight injuries. Christ Mullery received a bad ankle injury in the Kewanee contest and is listed as a questionable starter.

Scott Helfrich, a junior, will center while senior Dan Kopacz and junior Dean Harding occupy the guard positions. Seniors Ed Jones and Doug Devine will be the offensive tackles.

Ed Bushman is positioned at tight end while Gordie Wooten is at split-end and Steve Fischer duties the slot back position. All three are seniors.

The Dixon defense, also known as a tough squad, is led by Devine, who had another excellent defensive game at Kewanee with seven tackles and two assists, at middle linebacker. LeBlanc and Fischer are assigned to the defensive ends while Jones and Harding start at tackles.

Four juniors vie for the starting shot at the guards position, with Mike Wilcox and Kent Johnson working on right guard and Tony Fassler and Scott Masters seeking the left defensive guard assignment.

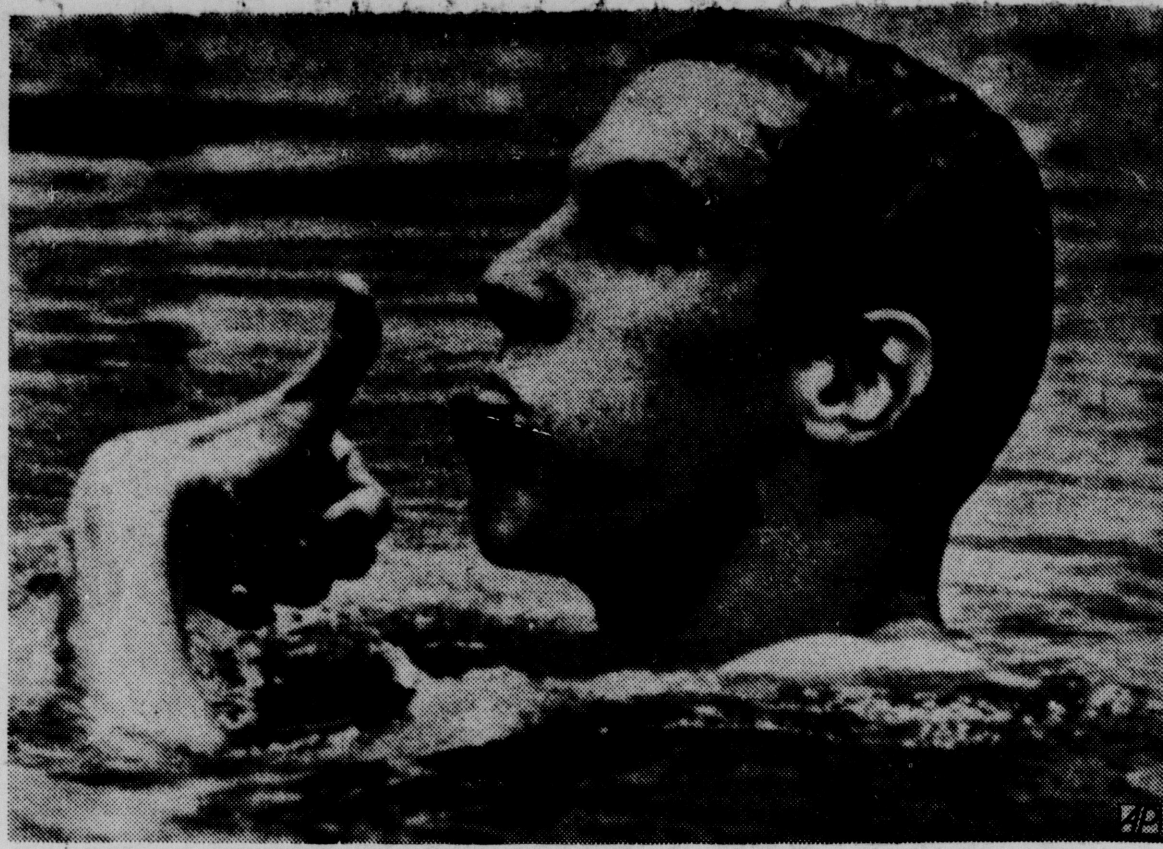

Inverts will be Kopacz and senior Jeff Webb while half-backs Wooten and junior Gary Magnafici round out the Dukes defense.

"Our practices this week have been excellent," stated Dukes head coach Sam Applebaum recently. "We have had a full week to practice and this helps."

"Swinton will bet his big test tonight. We hope to open an attack by utilizing his passing game. I have been more than satisfied with Swinton this season."

Dixon holds a 2-6 mark going into the contest, with a 2-3 fourth place conference position. Rock Falls is 1-7 and were 0-5 in the Southwest NCIC Division.

The home game slated at 8 p.m., is preceded by the Dukes' contest. This will be Dixon's final home game of the 1975 gridiron season.

Steelers may spook Bengals

NEW YORK (AP) — Boo! Ghosts and goblins have no business around the National Football League, even on Halloween ... or do they?

There is, for example, the ghost of Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium, where the Pittsburgh Steelers have been unable to win a football game since 1971. They will try again Sunday and if they win, they can tie the Bengals for the AFC's Central Division lead. But it says here that the hex will hold and Cincinnati will protect its perfect record with a seventh straight victory.

Then there is the improbable battle for first place in the NFC East, where too-young Dallas is still one game in front and too-old Washington is tied for second. The ghosts have to catch one of those clubs in Sunday's game at RFK Stadium. Stay with the Cowboys and their shotgun offense on this one.

And don't forget the ghosts of missing quarterbacks — Jim Plunkett of New England, Steve Bartkowski of Atlanta, and Bill Munson and Greg Landry of Detroit — all sidelined a week ago. Their absences will mean defeats for their teams this week, if you believe this pro picker.

Last week's log was 9-4, moving the season record to 56-22 for .718.

The picks:
Giants 24, San Diego 10
The Chargers, averaging six points per game, are just what the Giants need right now. What the Chargers need is a healthy Don Woods, who, unfortunately, is finished for the season.

Cincinnati 14, Pittsburgh 3
Defense is the name of the game here. The Steelers lead the league, allowing only 61 points in six games. The Bengals have permitted just 70. Go with Cincinnati's Kenny Anderson, developing into the best quarterback in the NFL.

Dallas 26, Washington 20
Coach Tom Landry calls his shotgun "The Spread" but names aren't important. What counts is that Roger Staubach is making it work for the Cowboys, who'll need everything they can muster to beat the tough old Redskins.

Houston 28, Kansas City 14
Would you believe Houston's onetime whipping boys have won 11 of their last 14 games over two seasons, including a 5-1 start this year? The streak continues this week against the surprising Chiefs, who lost three, won three, and are now due to lose three more.

Oakland 31, Denver 17
The bottom is beginning to fall out for the Broncos, who keep running out of healthy bodies. Meanwhile, the Raiders seem to have put things back together with last week's shut-out of San Diego.

Miami 34, Chicago 10
The Dolphins are sky high after winning last week's war against Buffalo to take over the AFC East lead. Pity the poor Bears, who happen to be in the wrong place this week.

Minnesota 17, Green Bay 13
The Vikings aren't awesome. They just keep winning, doing enough of the right things every week to stay undefeated. The Packers are improving, but they're not in Minnesota's class quite yet.

San Francisco 10, Detroit 7
You have to pick against a team that lost its first-string and second-string quarterbacks in the same game a week ago. Only against San Francisco could the Lions even have a chance right now.

Buffalo 38, N.Y. Jets 24
The prospects are frightening. O.J. Simpson against a defense that has given up 31 points per game. The key question is whether Simpson will gain 1,000 yards before the Jets give up 200 points. The Jet defense has the edge. It needs to allow just 10 points. Simpson needs 89 yards.

St. Louis 24, New England 7
Seeing is believing and now that the Pro Picker has seen St. Louis, he believes the Cardinals. Multi-talented Terry Metcalfe and Mel Gray will give the Patriots' secondary fits.

Baltimore 20, Cleveland 10
Will the Browns ever win another football game? Someday, maybe, but not this week. The young Colts are getting better and better.

New Orleans 17, Atlanta 7
Invariably, a new coach lifts a team, at least temporarily. Ernie Hefferle should be able to do that for the Saints. Playing the Falcons won't hurt either.

Los Angeles 21, Philadelphia 14
Rams are on a five-game winning streak that shouldn't be disturbed by the Eagles. Los Angeles has a habit of playing only as well as it has to and that might keep this one closer than it should be.

Bulls hand Cavs first victory

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers have their first victory of the 1975-76 season and center Jim Chones learned what Coach Bill Fitch hopes is a valuable lesson.

The Cavaliers, losers of two in a row going into Thursday night's game, hit 39 points in the third period and soared to a 108-91 victory over the Chicago Bulls.

The winners were forced to go through part of the third period and all of the fourth without Chones, their 6-11 bulwark. The youngster was sent for an early shower by Referee Jimmy Clark with 8:02 left in the third period and Cleveland ahead 58-53.

Chones said the first technical was called by Clark when Chones was talking to himself. "All I said was 'Geez.' I talk to myself out there all the time."

Fitch said the second technical, necessitating an automatic ejection and $250 fine, was called by Clark when Chones cursed Chicago center Tom Boerwinkle.

"He wasn't talking to the referee," Fitch said. "He was talking to Boerwinkle because Boerwinkle was telling the referee to call another technical on him."

Fitch said, "I'm not defending Chones. He's got to learn to keep his mouth shut no matter what happens out there. I think he learned something from this tonight and it's early enough in the season that it can help him."

"I don't knock officials for calling technicals — they have to police the game," he added. Cleveland trailed by five points early in the first period, but took the lead for good at 19-18 later in the same stanza and led by as many as 19 points several times late in the game.

Luke Witte, Cleveland's third-string center, took Chones' place and came up with six points and five rebounds, drawing praise from Fitch.

"Luke has got to be the unsung hero," Fitch said. "There's a reason for having 12 people on a basketball team and Luke showed that tonight."

Witte, a 7-footer whose job has appeared to be in jeopardy this season, said, "That's not the most enjoyable way to enter a ball game, with Jim out and knowing he's not going back in there."

"I didn't really feel any particular pressure. I just knew I had to do the job," the big blond added. "I felt real good about showing coach Fitch I can still do the job but I was even happier that we won the game."

Dick Motta, Chicago's coach, said, "The referee blew his cool too soon on the ejection. We had the ball twice with a chance to tie after that, but didn't."

Cleveland forward Jim Brewer came up with 11 points in the third period and wound up with 16 points, nine rebounds and a steal. Guard Bobby "Bingo" Smith led both squads with 22 points on Channel 14 shooting.

Chicago was led by Bob Love with 17 points and Jerry Sloan with 15.

'Freak shooter' may retire

COLMAN, S.D. (AP) — The man who bills himself as the world's greatest basketball "freak shot specialist" says he might retire after this season.

Wilfred Hetzel, 64, retired three years ago as a government typist and has traveled 40,000 miles a year since to perform in high school gymnasiums.

He owns several world records. Hetzel has made 144 straight free throws standing on just one foot and has made 92 in a row on one foot with his eyes closed. He once made four "dropkicks" in a row from 20 feet.

He also shoots from his knees, making as many as 66 straight free throws that way, and he shoots with one hand or two.

He bounces the ball off the floor into the hoop from as far back as the free-throw circle and once made 35 straight "bounce-bank" shots from about 12 feet and at a slight angle.

Hetzel was raised in Melrose, Minn., and at about age 12 found that he couldn't play basketball as well as his peers, who were bigger, faster and more robust.

"I decided I'd just learn to shoot better than any of them," he said recently in Colman, where he had come to perform. He spent hours practicing different kinds of shots.

"I made up teams and whole conferences playing mythical games and seasons," Hetzel said. "I was the star."

Some of his press clippings — he's made Ripley's Believe It Or Not and the Guinness Book of World Records — refer to him as "eagle-eyed," but "actually I have very poor eyesight, always have."

Hetzel's first paying performance was in Minneapolis in 1933.

"I received $3 for it, but now I get $60 or so a show," he said. "Made about $6,000 during the 1973-74 season (fall, winter and spring) and $9,000 last year," he added.

Hetzel recalls memorable shots and audiences. "Those four dropkicks in a row at Hutchinson, Minn., fulfilled a lifelong dream last season," he said.

NFL battlefield takes its toll

BY TIM WHITE
AP Sports Writer

Is there a doctor in the stadium?

With six weeks gone in the season, the National Football League's injured reserve list resembles the rolls of the wounded after a small war, with the present toll now at 127.

There are another eight weeks remaining in the 1975-76 season, and if the situation worsens — almost a certainty — the league may want to hold their Bicentennial Super Bowl at Valley Forge.

With 1,118 athletes employed by the NFL's 26 clubs — 43 to a team — the 127 disabled men sidelined for the season represent a dismaying 11 per cent of the total playing force.

Many see the problem as a direct result of the NFL's controversial decision to economize by cutting rosters from 47 to 43. A spokesman for the Kansas City Chiefs, who have 15 men out for either all or part of the season, felt that there was "no doubt" the reduced roster was the culprit.

"We're playing the same number of games, but with four fewer men," he said. "We have less depth, so folks don't get as much rest as they used to."

Washington Redskins Coach George Allen agrees.

"I've never seen anything like it," he said, surveying his team's injury census. "With no taxi squad," Allen explained, "you are playing players that have bumps and bruises. Normally, you take them off for a week and let them rest and recover. One of the reasons coaches cannot wait a long period of time for players to recover is that every game is vital."

Even so, many teams seem destined to forfeit still more of their physical vitality because of the NFL's version of catch-22 — a built-in dilemma in the rule book.

A player on the NFL injured reserve list is paid his salary as long as he remains there. If a player on the list recovers during the season, he may be placed on waivers and another club may pick him up and use him in the same season. However, he cannot play for the club that put him there.

A rule change this year allows a club to protect only three players on its injured reserve list. The rest are vulnerable in the marketplace next year, so many teams may have trouble protecting their rosters for next season while struggling to maintain a healthy squad this season.

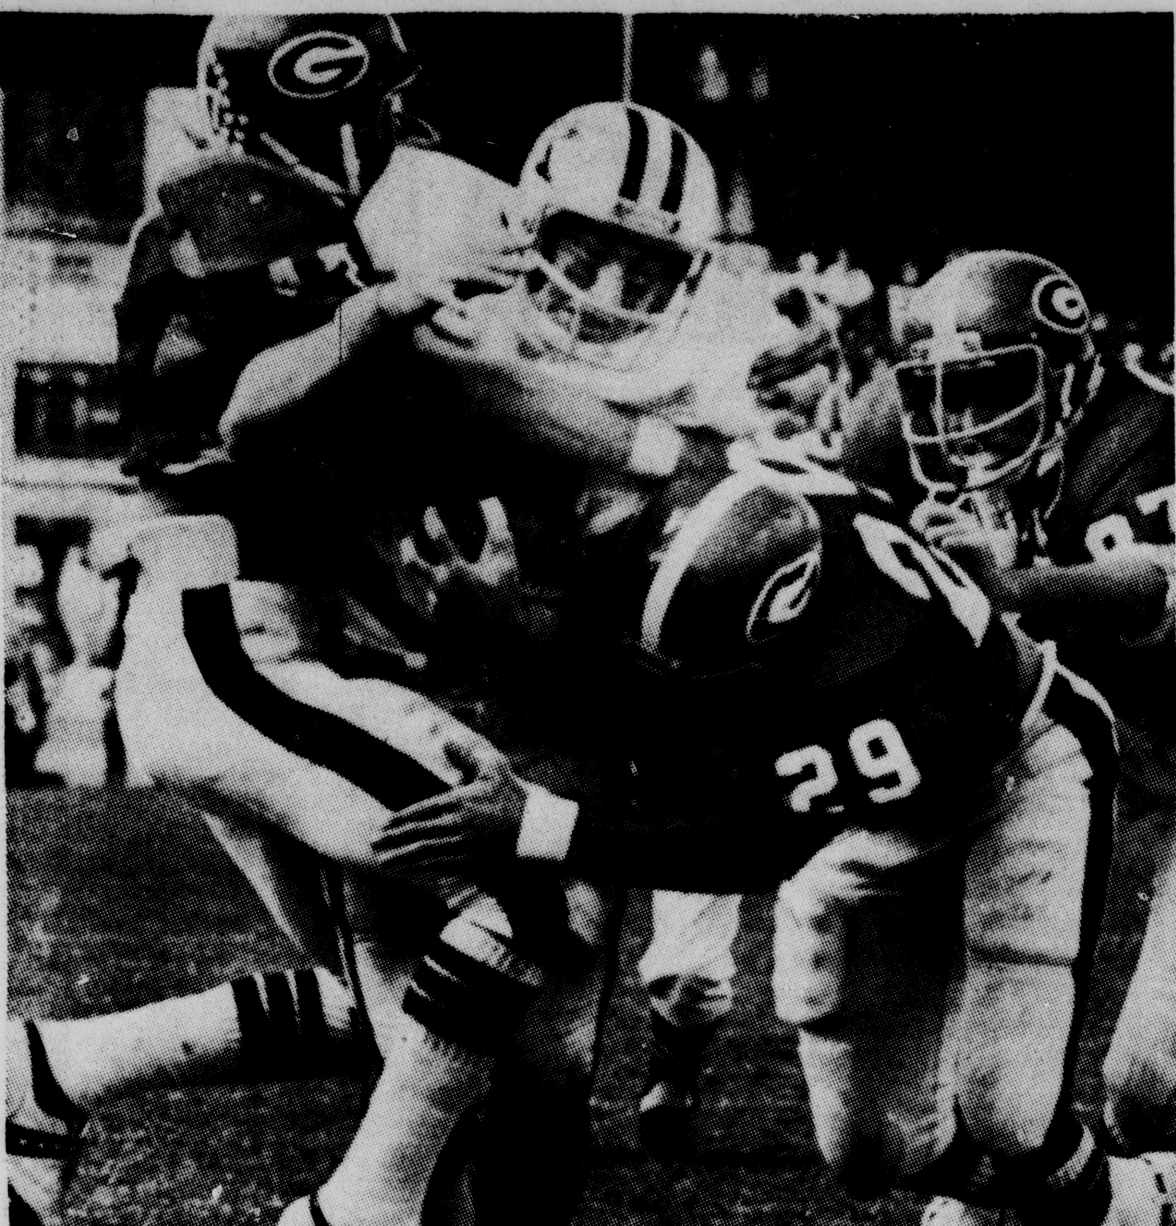

Among the Chiefs on the Kansas City injured reserve list are starting guards Ed Budde and Randy Beisler, starting wide receiver Otis Taylor and starting defensive tackle Marvin Upshaw. Four's a crowd and one of them cannot be protected.

The six players on the Miami Dolphins injured reserve list include three defensive starters: safety Dick Anderson, middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti and tackle Bob Heinz. A recent key addition is tight end Jim McFarland. Any one of them could be lost.

The Detroit Lions are feeling the pressure exerted by the team's health hangups. Veteran receivers Larry Walton and Jon Stagers and rookie Dennis Franklin are among the nine players on the Lions' injured reserve list. If Detroit adds either or both of its injured quarterbacks — Bill Munson and Greg Landry — to the ranks, it will surrender one or two valuable players. If it does not add them to the list, the Lions will play with less than a 43-man roster.

The Redskins have defensive end Vernon Biggs, offensive guard Paul Laaveg and defensive back Ken Stone on their seven-man

Illini battle for third place in Big Ten

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — With Ohio State and Michigan having reaffirmed their Big Two football superiority in the Big Ten, an ultimate third-place finish could be at stake when Wisconsin plays Illinois here Saturday (1 p.m. CST).

The Illini gained third place at 3-1 by stunning highly regarded Michigan State 21-19 last weekend. Wisconsin edged Northwestern 17-14, leaving the Badgers and Wildcats tied for fourth at 2-2.

A Badger victory Saturday would tie them with Illinois for third. Wisconsin has an easier closing schedule, playing Iowa, Indiana and Minnesota, while Illinois is to play Ohio State, Michigan and Northwestern.

Saturday's game, then, has assumed unexpected importance for UW, and defensive backfield coach Gary Blackney is well aware of it.

"It appears Illinois is the last team in the Big Ten capable of challenging the Big Two," he said. "I feel they can play with Michigan and Ohio State."

"Illinois has the most balanced offense I've seen except for Ohio State," he said. "But maybe even Illinois throws a little better than Ohio State."

The Illini rank third in the conference, behind Ohio State and Michigan, in offense and scoring with per game averages of 363.7 yards and 28.5 points. They are fourth in defense, having allowed 325.7 yards.

Wisconsin is eighth on offense and defense, having gained 245.5 yards per game while having allowed 380.2.

Illinois' offensive stars are sophomore quarterback Kurt Steger and running backs Lonnie Perrin and Chubby Phillips. Steger has completed 51 per cent of his 116 passes for 868 yards and six touchdowns. Perrin has rushed for 496 yards, averaging six yards per carry, while Phillips has gained 382, a 4.7 average.

"Perrin is one of the best runners we've seen, and he can throw the ball 45 yards off the wrong foot," Blackney said. "He's the best halfback option passer we'll face."

"Steger is a good passer," he said. "He's not a great runner, but a good one. And he has three good receivers."

"They've been mixing it up more," UW Head Coach John Jardine said of Illinois. "They run very concise patterns and Steger knows who to look for. They don't run options a lot—just enough to keep you honest."

Jardine has spent much of the practice week preparing the Badgers for Illinois' 4-4 defense. Its variations include a five or six man line and a rover back secondary, with one of the linebackers dropping back.

SHERWIN
 Williams®

INTRODUCING CLASSIC 99™

A breakthrough in latex wall paint!
 It combines the features you want most in one premium paint.

New Classic 99 from Sherwin-Williams.

It's the best latex wall paint we've ever made. In fact, we think it's the first truly premium latex wall paint on the market. Because it's the first latex wall paint that combines the features you want most.

It covers better. It covers like no latex wall paint we've ever made before (and coming from Sherwin-Williams, that's quite a statement!).

It's scrubbable. It's the most scrubbable latex wall paint we've ever made. So you can use it in rooms where the walls take abuse, and scrub it clean time and time again.

It's so tough and long-lasting, you can use it on wood trim. Classic 99 is so tough and so long-lasting, you can not only use it in any room in your house, you can even use it on wood trim.

It's available in 679 colors. Unlike most so-called premium paints that give you a very limited choice of colors, Classic 99 is available in hundreds of colors.

We guarantee your satisfaction. With a paint this good, we know you'll be satisfied. "This latex wall paint is the result of extensive research and testing by The Sherwin-Williams Company. We guarantee your satisfaction in the use of this product, or your purchase price will be cheerfully refunded."

New Classic 99. Available only at Sherwin-Williams Decorating Centers, including the one near you.

$11.99

At $11.99 a gallon, it's a great value. Especially if you can't afford to waste time and money on cheaper paint. Classic 99 is the best-covering latex wall paint Sherwin-Williams has ever made. And because it's so scrubbable and long-lasting, you paint less often.

Your Newspaper Boy MAY BE A GIRL!

The term, "Newspaper boy", has fallen by the wayside as newspapers all over America are beginning to contract with girls as well as boys to be their newspaper carriers. As newspaper carriers these young boys and girls are learning to manage their own businesses, a valuable experience which is helping them to develop into better future business leaders.

SALE—HOUSEHOLD GOODS WANT TO BUY ANTIQUES

ATTENTION DEALERS & COLLECTORS

Midwest's largest antique mail order dealer buying complete estates or antique collections for CASH. D. Shiaras's Question and Answer Period On Antiques has been read weekly by millions of readers around the world for over a decade. D. Shiaras, Route 3, Box 66, Grand Detour, Illinois 61021. Phone 652-4278.

QUESTION & ANSWER PERIOD

QUESTION— Mr. Shiaras, my husband and I find that we have a lot of time since reaching the retirement age. Any suggestions for two bored pensioners?

ANSWER— Most certainly have! I suggest collecting old pattern glass. It is quite plentiful and priced within the reach of nearly everyone's pocketbook. It escalates in price each year around 10 pct. You would have nothing to lose but dat old "Debbil" boredom.

My Chinese auctions continue on 400 Electrical World Magazine 1906-1920 loaded with much early radio, television and electric trolley car material. I intend to sell them, $200 plus freight.

QUESTION— Mr. Shiaras, do you think Ex-President Nixon's trip to China will benefit the antique economy?

ANSWER— Yes! China sits on a vast storehouse of untapped antique memorabilia. The coverage given the trip has made dealers and collectors look once again at Chinese jade, cloisonne, rose medallion, Canton, etc., as an investment in fine antiques. With trade barriers pulled down we may soon have a good supply to satisfy the increasing demand. We have sorely needed this injection into the veins of the antique business. Just how long do you suppose could the distillers and notions companies satisfy the industry with enough bottles?!!

RE-PUBLIC SALE OF REAL ESTATE

AGNES E. McFADDEN ESTATE
100 ACRES

SATURDAY, NOV. 1, 1975
1:30 P.M.

To be sold at farm located 15 miles south of Dixon, Illinois on Route No. 26 to Maytown Blacktop then east 4 miles and ¼ mile north to farm on east side of road.
Legally described as the South 40 acres of the Northwest Quarter, and the North 60 acres of the Southwest Quarter of Section 17, Township 19 North, Range 10, East of the Fourth Principal Meridian, in Lee County, Illinois.
This is a practically unimproved piece of farmland (excepting old house, which could be used for summer cabin, barn and corn crib) with 55 acres tillable and an ASC average of 101 bushels of corn per acre. Soil types range from a black loam to a brown sandy loam. With some work, more acres could be made tillable. This is an excellent opportunity to purchase land at a reasonable price. Would make an excellent recreation farm with a good building site. Anyone looking for land upon which to build with tillable land and at a price you can afford, should investigate this sale.
TERMS: 15 per cent down day of sale balance on or before March 1, 1976. In possession will be given. Abstract or title policy furnished at seller's option. 1975 taxes due and payable 1976 to be paid by sellers. Property may be inspected anytime by contacting auctioneer.

A high price might keep you from buying a new home.

But a low price shouldn't.

A Wausau Home costs thousands of dollars less than comparable homes. Because of the way we buy materials and the efficiency of our controlled building system.

For example, every Wausau Home is built with the finest grade kiln-dried lumber. 100% copper plumbing. Real ceramic tile walls and floors in the bath.

We buy the very best and we buy in quantity. Which lowers the price, not the quality.

And we build under the very best conditions, indoors, out of the weather.

Stop by for a close look at a Wausau Home. But don't let our low prices scare you. That shouldn't keep you from buying the new home you want.

Welcome Home.

Should record companies swap or sell artists?

By STEPHEN FORD
NEW YORK (NEA)—Asking the musical question, "Why don't record labels trade or sell artists like sports teams do with athletes?" provocative pro sports attorney Al Ross of Los Angeles has decreed that henceforth, he will champion the cause of the world's oppressed rock stars.

It is not difficult to envision some tyrannical record company executives, known for exploiting artists or ripping off record buyers, swallowing their cigars over a chance to implement the tactics of Charlie O. Finley: If Elton fails to sell out the Coliseum, put 'im on waivers.

But Ross adds that such a policy would also provide artists with an avenue for escape from entangling long-term recording contracts signed before they started hitting .500 on the sales charts.

Such a proposal staggers the imagination. A Rolling Stones' album falters in sales? Atlantic might trade them for two upcoming bands still considered bush league. Bruce Springsteen could renegotiate his contract with Columbia and decide that being canonized by press and public warrants a better deal—so he splits to Warner Bros. The possibilities are endless.

Also frightening. Before we know it, they'll form unions and then cartels and plot strikes and embargoes and, well, you get the picture.

Aussie Hospitality: John Denver may be taking his admiration for Frank Sinatra a little too far. After a very successful show in Las Vegas with Sinatra, Dimples Denver kicked off a tour of Australia with a press conference. There he nonchalantly mentioned that he and his lady enjoy passing the pipe. The self-righteous Australian press furiously branded him a dope fiend and demanded his deportation at once. In a reenactment of their now-famous dead-carpet treatment shown Sinatra last year, surly musician union members had Denver feeling very down under.

Neil Diamond returns from his three-year hiatus to complete an album co-produced by Robbie Robertson of The Band. The Who launches a two-part U.S. tour next month—their first since 1971—with the royalty of reggae, Toots & The Maytals, opening shows. Some fans conjecture Rick Wakeman's performance on the current Strawbs' album is the sound of a keyboard wizard about to join that group permanently.

Earl Scruggs is recuperating nicely in Nashville after his private plane crashed in Madison, Tenn. He expects to join his Revue shortly for a concert tour. Love of country carries a brutal price tag in England for rock stars too enamored of Britannia to emigrate and escape the taxman. Now contemplating their own Atlantic crossings to join a score of countrymen residing here for tax reasons are two-thirds of the Bee Gees and those twilight titillators

Tom Jones and Engelbert Humperdinck... Leo Sayres' second and anxiously-awaited American tour was cancelled at the 11th hour when he entered the hospital to have four impacted wisdom teeth dealt with.

Mini-Review
Disciples of Linda Ronstadt frustrated over how long it may take to convert the rest of the world need wonder no more: "Prisoner In Disguise" (Asylum 7E-1045) may do for her what posing anaturel did for Burt Reynolds.

Her selections, vocals and background musicians are as much a personal accomplishment in her evolution from duckling to swan as they are proof that paens sung her long ago were not off-key.

The bitterest critic would be swept away by her version of Neil Young's "Love is a Rose," rendered in a style that is simultaneously sensitive and explosive. A tender, nearly angelic duet with C&W nightingale Emmy Lou Harris called "The Sweetest Gift" leaves you sighing.

And there's something for everyone in Ms. Ronstadt's pop potpourri. The dynamism of Detroit punctures you with

Holland - Dozier - Holland's "Heat Wave" and Smokey Robinson's "Tracks of My Tears." For errant Eaglemaniacs, there's "Many Rivers to Cross," guaranteed to wrench listeners' sensibilities from Fire Island to Big Sur. On the ala carte menu, the rosy voice kissing "You Tell Me That I'm Falling Down" belongs to Maria Muldaur and that buttery acoustic guitar over in the corner of the same 'chune is provided by James Taylor. The Ronstadt touch also adds just the right ingredient to a Dolly

Parton ballad "I Will Always Love You."

Prisoner In Disguise can be a change-from-potatoes for new Ronstadt fans or Oysters Rockefeller to those who have long appreciated the woman's cooking—it depends on how hungry you are.

During a major tune-up, your car's exhaust system should be checked closely for leaks and damaged parts.

save BIG!

This Is Something Different

This is really a chance to save a good sum of money and get a worthwhile investment with it. If you need furniture for any part of your home and want to really save, now is the time and WAYSIDE FURNITURE is the place! This special event is going to be for a limited time only... Saturday 9 to 5 p.m. and Sunday noon to 6 p.m.

Our people have been busy all week, reducing prices, checking inventory, unpacking and moving furniture for this event. Every item in the store has been given a triple take (that is our warehouse, office and management people have looked for items that are no longer current, a little slow in selling, or perhaps an off beat color). Anything not passing the test gets a special sale tag.

We just took our annual inventory — we've got one of the biggest stores in town — and did we find some goodies. Lots of cats and dogs, white elephants and discontinued items were found lurking behind posts and inside crates. Also, in the fall, factories introduce their new styles. An extra button is added to a chair, a slightly different finish is used on a bedroom set — this all creates DISCOS... discontinued numbers. Perfectly good merchandise, but no longer replaceable.

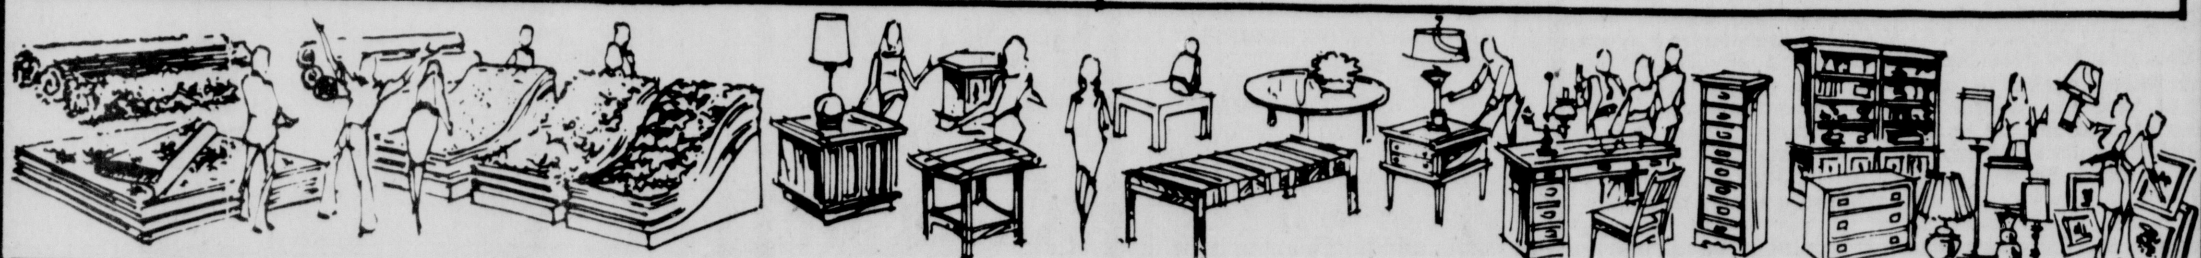

Well, enough of this jabber. Let's get down to the nitty-gritty... OUR CRAZY, UNBELIEVABLE SALE PRICES. Yes, they are crazy, but we've got to move these items now!

Ouch!

... It's great furniture and we've been selling this chair for years, but Schweiger's designers wanted a change so out they go. This contemporary chair in tough Herculon cover, bites the dust at only $69. We used to sell it at close to double this price.

We got a bunch of night stands, most of them discontinued. Problem is that they've been around a little too long. Take a look... If there is something you can use you'll save dollars. That's because we're selling these $100 nite stands for $35... YES, JUST PLAIN CRAZY PRICES.

Our warehouse is very large, 12,000 sq. ft. of furniture and, by last count, close to 4,000 pieces of furniture are stuffed into it... So, of course we can't possibly list all items, but we can assure you that our prices are right. We've found some odd end tables, you can have your choice for $29, or some twin headboards for $9.00... Discontinued sofas worth three, four and five hundred dollars going for half price... and chairs that are worth as much as $150 going for $49.95.

Cash And Carry Specials

Softened water not ruled out in health problems

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
 DEAR DR. LAMB— Some years ago we had a famous brand name water softening system installed. Since then my wife has developed a high blood pressure condition. I have been bothered with angina pectoris.

A visiting relative would not drink the water from our tap, but would use only the untreated water from the outside hydrant. She claimed it was bad for our condition and would cause high blood pressure and other heart ailments.

It seems that somewhere an extensive research project came up with statistics verifying this idea. Has this been found to be true? Is it bad to drink water that has been treated by commercial water softeners?

DEAR READER— There is some truth in the story. Some research studies have shown that there is a higher incidence of heart attacks in individuals drinking soft water as compared to people drinking hard water. However, a statistical study by the UCLA School of Public Health in Los Angeles found no relationship at all.

One explanation suggested was that soft water acts on the plumbing and allows cadmium and perhaps other toxic metals to be dissolved into the soft water. This apparently does not happen with hard water. If that theory is correct and there is increased heart disease in people using soft water, you can avoid the problem by always running a lot of water before you take any to drink. This will avoid getting water that has stood in the pipes and dissolved cadmium. If the theory is incorrect then running water will not help.

The theory goes on to state that cadmium and heavy metals dissolved in the soft water that has stood in the pipes may damage the kidneys which in turn leads to high blood pressure. High blood pressure increases the incidence of heart and vascular disease.

These observations do not prove that your water softener has caused your problems. Both high blood pressure and angina pectoris heart disease are common enough from other causes that you may well have developed these problems, anyway.

Some home water softeners do cause a lot of sodium to be left in the water. People on salt restricted diets cannot tolerate this water well.

In view of all these factors, I think it is better for people to use ordinary tap water for drinking purposes. Keep it in the refrigerator.

Home water softeners are very useful to prevent the accumulation of lime deposits in plumbing. They can be used for water in the home for all other purposes, such as in dishwashers, for showers, washing and whatever household needs you have.

I notice from your letter that you live in San Antonio, Tex. Don't you know you have one of the best and safest water supplies of any large city in the United States? It is naturally purified through the Edwards natural aquifer. It seems a shame to spoil such good natural drinking water with a home softener. That natural aquifer means you don't have the polluted water sources many cities must contend with, and it is a major factor in providing abundant, cheap, healthy water for you. As long as your city protects its aquifer system you will have an invaluable asset to your health and for the citizens of your community.

Today in History

By The Associated Press
 Today is Friday, Oct. 31, the 304th day of 1975. There are 61 days left in the year. This is Halloween.

On this date in 1517, Martin Luther nailed his 95 theses on the chapel door at Castle Church in Wittenberg, Germany.

In 1754, Columbia University had its beginning when a royal charter was granted to King's College in New York City.

In 1864, Nevada became the 36th state.

In 1955, Britain's Princess Margaret said in a radio broadcast: "I would like it to be known that I have decided not to marry Group Capt. Peter Townsend."

In 1956 Britain and France bombed Egypt in the Israeli-Egyptian War.

In 1959, a former U.S. marine in Moscow, Lee Oswald, told newsmen he would never return to the United States.

In 1966, President Lyndon Johnson was enthusiastically received on a visit to Seoul, South Korea.

Ten years ago: President Humberto Castelo Branco of Brazil was consolidating power under decrees giving him dictatorial authority.

Five years ago: The worst floods in six years in South Vietnam claimed at least 150 lives and left more than 180,000 persons homeless.

One year ago: U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger flew from New Delhi to the capital of Bangladesh, Dacca.

Today's birthdays: Prince Norodom Sihanouk of Cambodia is 53. Actress Barbara Bel Geddes also is 53.

Thought for today: All things come to him who waits — provided he knows what he is waiting for. — President Woodrow Wilson, 1856-1924.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Rhode Island General Assembly voted to allow the people of Newport to supply the British ships stationed there with beef and beer in hopes they would halt their blockade of the port.

DIXON EVENING TELEGRAPH, Fri., Oct. 31, 1975

Mrs. Reeverts is guest for Home Extension Day

AMBOY — Mrs. Frances Reeverts, cooperative Extension Adviser, was the speaker at the guest day program of the Amboy Afternoon Unit of the Homemakers Extension held Tuesday afternoon in the Farm Bureau Auditorium.

Mrs. Reeverts discussed "What's New in Appliances," and used color slides to illustrate her talk. Information studies show that the average family owns 15 to 18 different appliances which represent an investment of between $2,000 to $5,000. She gave factors to consider in selecting various appliances and suggested ways to care for them to prolong good service. She also gave information on the life-expectancy of the appliances if given the proper care.

Mrs. D. A. Seloover gave the minor lesson on "Flag Etiquette."

Mrs. Seloover presided at the business session when Mrs. Don Ortgiesen, membership chairman, reported that five new members were welcomed into the club. Mrs. Yoland Meusel announced the PTC Children's parade on Sunday afternoon and members voted to contribute $25 to help buy candy for the children participating.

Attention was called to the public information meeting on cancer to be held Nov. 13 from 2 to 3:30 p.m., at the 4-H Center.

Mrs. Grace Stark, district director of the American Cancer Society, will show a recent film on breast cancer and will have a large rubber doll, "Betsy," to demonstrate the detection of breast cancer.

Mrs. Catherine Harrison gave a report of the National Homemakers Extension Conference which she attended in Orlando, Fla., in September.

Mrs. Harrison also attended a craft meeting on Monday and will give instructions to interested persons on making a yarn plant hanger. The hanger takes two skeins of rug yarn and a metal ring.

Members who assisted with the food stands during the holiday bazaar and the rock show were thanked for help with these successful ventures.

The voluntary action committee reported on a party sponsored for the residents of Mapleside Manor.

The next meeting of the unit will be Nov. 18, with Mrs. Harry Slaybaugh.

Meeting of St. Anne Sodality is scheduled

SUBLETTE — The regular meeting of the St. Anne Sodality will be held, Nov. 6, in St. Mary's School basement. This will be a Holiday Bazaar. A 6:30 mass in Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church will precede the meeting. Items for the bazaar can be brought to the school that afternoon after 3 p.m. The items will be auctioned off that evening. Sally Pry will be the auctioneer. Guests are welcome to attend. Refreshments will be served.

Band members are Mrs. Clement Henkel, chairman, Mrs. Louis Vaessen, co-chairman, Mrs. Gladys Eccles, Mrs. Ronald Vaessen, Mrs. Ralph Leffelman, Mrs. Gilbert Bulfer, Mrs. Leslie Dinges, Miss Rosetta Schuhler, Mrs. George Malach, Mrs. Richard Garland and Mrs. Donald Full.

Church Circles plan meeting

OREGON — All circles of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will have the topic "North American Sisters" for their November meetings. The circles will meet as follows:

Dorcas Circle will meet Nov. 11 at 9:15 a.m. with Mrs. Jonas Martin and Mrs. Arthur Dietze will be lesson leader.

Deborah Circle will meet Nov. 11 at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. Robert Kuhn and Mrs. Lweis Dickson will be lesson leader.

Esther Circle will meet Nov. 13 at 1:30 p.m. with Mrs. Arthur Bergner and Mrs. Orville Sell will be lesson leader.

Naomi Circle will meet Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. Armin Weng and Mrs. John Berger will be lesson leader.

Joanna Circle will meet Nov. 18 in the church parlor with Mrs. Stanley Eden as hostess. Mrs. Norman Stoecker will be lesson leader.

ALCW Workshop

OHIO — One hundred American Lutheran Church Women of the Illinois North-west District, 31 congregations, attended the officer's workshop October 22 in the First Lutheran Church, Ohio.

Following the coffee hour, a hymn was sung by the group. Devotions were led by the Rev. William Ufkes, pastor of the Ohio church. Mrs. Donald Erickson, Ohio, greeted the guests. District officers were introduced: President, Mrs. Donald Giese, Dixon; vice president, Mrs. Orville Stocker, Rockford; secretary, Mrs.

Palmer Swanson Jr., Rock Falls; treasurer, Mrs. Raymond Heilener, Galena; education secretary, Mrs. Harry Allen, Rochelle; stewardship secretary, Mrs. Myrna Cording, Galena.

The ALCW theme for 1976 is Shalom; the Bible study and skits corresponded with the theme. Officer work groups met in both morning and afternoon sessions. A song fest, bicentennial skit, explanation of resource material, report on the National ALCW Convention were highlights of the afternoon program.

Oregon church plans to hold memorial service

OREGON — St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Oregon, will hold its annual Memorial Service, Sunday, 10:30 a.m. The first Sunday in November is All Saints Sunday, and the congregation annually honors those who have died during the year on that Sunday.

With the senior choir singing the responses, the congregation will use the order for funerals as the liturgy of the day. The Rev. Armin G. Weng will conduct the liturgy and preach. A memorial roll will be read during the service.

At 7 p.m., the Holy communion will be celebrated at an informal service in the church parlor.

The board of the Lutheran church women will meet at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 3.

Forum to meet

The Adult Forum of St. Paul Lutheran Church will meet Sunday at 9:30 a.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

Discussion will continue on the subject "Parents Need All the Help They Can Get!" Mrs. Norma Rodd, director of Open Sesame Child Care Center, will be present to discuss "Children need models, not critics!" Parents are urged to be present.

Methodist Church Circles to meet

OREGON — All circles of the United Methodist Church will meet Nov. 5 as follows:

Naomi Circle will meet at 9:30 a.m., with Mrs. John Hurlburt, Rt. 3. Mrs. Laura Walker will be co-hostess and Mrs. Ralph Davis will give devotions. Mrs. Wilbur Pickering will present the program.

Ruth Circle will meet at 9 a.m., with Mrs. Henry Ulferts, 1010 S. Second St. Mrs. Claude Bolthouse will be co-hostess and Mrs. Robert Croft will give devotions. Each member will bring a poem or thought for Thanksgiving. A musical program will be presented by Mrs. Herbert Davis and Mrs. Ulferts.

Cluster meeting set in Rock Falls

Members of the First Christian Church will attend the annual Cluster Assembly of the Rock River North Cluster of Christian Churches at the Rock Falls Christian Church Sunday, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

Five members of Gleaners International, along with sponsor Dr. Glenn Riddell, will serve as resource leaders for the Assembly. The focus will be "Bread for the World," and resources will include a film, a filmstrip, displays, verbal presentations and short small group discussions.

Gleaners International is based at Eureka College, Eureka, Ill. Its work was recently given coverage in a major New York Times article and was followed up by all three national TV networks in significant time blocks during their evening news programs. Initiated by students at the college, the concept of gleaning corn fields, obtaining surplus calves, and gathering unused food in other ways, is catching the attention of youth and older persons across the nation. The Gleaners are committed to making everyone aware of the extent of hunger in the world and of using every means of meeting the food needs of the hungry.

Mrs. Marian Taylor, First Christian Church, has been nominated to serve as vice president of the ten-congregation cluster which stretches from Princeton to Janesville, Wis. Tom W. Shepherd is outgoing president having served four years in that capacity. The Assembly will conclude before 7:30 with a message by Dr. Glenn Riddell of the religion department of Eureka College. A $1.50 supper will be served by the host congregation, and child care will be available for pre-schoolers.

Concert planned by Ohio chorus

OHIO — Miss Rita Linard, head of the Ohio High School music department, announces a vocal concert to be presented Monday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium by the junior and senior high chorus.

Featured on the program will be American songs. Selections will be used from the JCPenney Bicentennial Collection which is furnished free by the Penney Company to schools requesting same. The public is cordially invited to attend.

'Dreamy monster' inefficient

By NORMAN MACRAE
Deputy Editor
The Economist of London
(Fourth in a series)

There are three key points about the way in which Americans rule themselves: The American system is to set up lots of competing governments — both in Washington (as between executive and supreme court and congress) and at the local level (where the overlapping between the thousands of local authorities is now being compounded by greater overlapping within themselves as they also proliferate advisory committees, etc.).

This system has one huge advantage. As Madison saw when he created it, multigovernment saves America from being ruled by a "tyrannous majority." It also has several interesting side effects, and now one huge but correctable disadvantage.

The disadvantage is that this dreamy monster of American multigovernment is the most inefficient body for spending money on nonspecific and non-measured objectives that could be conceived. As it now has more money (about $5 trillion) to spend annually on non-specific and non-measured objectives than the entire annual income of the poorest 60 per cent of people in the world.

Any Cassandra would have been accused of making a mortally-sick joke if she had forecast what would happen in the past quarter-century. After America's "defense shift" (the diversion to defense between 1948 and the mid-1950s of nine per cent of America's huge and growing GNP), the military establishment managed to lose an unnecessary war to slightly ridiculous North Vietnam.

Then after the "welfare shift" (the diversion between 1960 and the early 1970s of another nine per cent of America's huge GNP to help, in particular, the urban poor) life for the urban poor became unmitigated hell. Crime in their home areas soared, family structures were destroyed, education and other public services rotted, cheery if dirty inner cities became neurotic and dirtier inner cities. At a cost that rose to $336 billion in 1974 America sprouted a welfare system that more often crippled than aided its clients and their neighbors.

The Americans are likely to react to this failure of managerial government either mainly in one silly way. The silly way is to "increase participation," to set up ever more competing units of governments so that all the five per cent of people who are interested in government as a hobby can eventually join some local coordinating committees to be coordinated by other coordinators.

This would mean that the volume and inefficiency of government spending of money would grow and grow.

The sensible reform is to reorganize the system in favor of the 95 per cent of people who are interested in governments as consumers of their services, not as would-be participatory producers of them. This should involve the transfer from bureaucratic to marketplace mechanisms of many of today's public services.

A great deal for the world will depend on which of these two roads America takes.

from it, and where his welfare-drawing constituents make up another large segment of his voters.

In parts of local government all this has created what Americans call "New York's British disease."

First, rent control predictably destroyed New York's housing market. Then the flight of the property-taxpaying white middle classes to federally-guaranteed or G.I. Joe mortgages in the suburbs brought their replacement in their now-rattling New York tenements by poor blacks and dark Hispanics. They helped to frighten some New York businesses away.

Then the City of New York started during the "welfare shift" to spend on public sector activities a British-style proportion of the gross metropolitan product which the property-taxpayers' flight now made it impossible for it to collect. The first results of this "welfare shift" were that control over New York passed into the hands of the public-sector-trade-unions, who were able to crucify the city with huge pension-and-pay rises and impossibly low productivity. The Americans carry this to extremes. As witness:

— After 20 years' service New York city employees can and do move to other jobs, carrying an unconditional (and periodically-raised) lifetime pension based on their final year's earnings. As a result, the city is effectively becoming committed to paying for two labor forces of 350,000 people each; in his 20th year every subway driver works a lot of overtime.

— Private enterprise carters in New York can make a profit collecting garbage if paid one-third the costs per ton that city garbage collectors show.

Expenditure per pupil in New York City's schools was around $2,250 last year while in church-affiliated schools in the Archdiocese of New York it was only about one-quarter of that. Reading standards in New York's city schools are low and falling, while in the diocesan schools they are higher and rising.

Overhauling Capitalism

The economic reasons are now overwhelming for America to lead the capitalist world to total overhaul of its grossly inefficient system of public-sector spending. The logical solution must lie with subjecting more of that $500 billion a year now deployed by American politicians and bureaucrats to various sorts of competition through market mechanisms.

Eventually, to quote John Diebold, the output of every unit in the public sector will have to be assessed (e.g., objective measures of "are the streets cleaner?") Then if anybody claims on a performance contract that he could provide greater output at less cost, the citizens should have a chance of considering whether to introduce this additional service or competition.

America's Disease

The Americans pick the purveyors of the less essential two-thirds of their services and goods (like soapbuds) by competitive consumer choice, and the purveyors of the more essential one-third (like street-lighting) by casting political ballots. At present the mechanism for picking purveyors of soapbuds is plainly working better than the mechanism of picking President Nixons and Mayor Beames.

This is not a matter of personalities. Democratic elections are the best way of choosing whom we want to decide on great issues of peace and war, but not the best way of picking what is the best rapidly changing technology with which to run the trains.

The need is to extend voter participation in defining what the community wants from a public service, but then to extend new sorts of market competition to find who can most efficiently provide it.

The mechanisms for changing contractors would not now be difficult. The big barriers in the way will be the bureaucrats and the participants.

The bureaucrats will be defending their jobs and freedom from being shown up. The participants — those who think that services should not serve consumers, but instead their own urge for power — are America's disease.

(C) 1975 The Economist of London, Distributed by NEA

Wounds from the weapons of the Revolutionary War were frightful, often leading to amputations, with no anesthesia but rum. Musket balls, usually home-molded, were .75 of an inch in diameter and were more a weapon of terror than precision. Dr. William Aspinwall, one of the many patriots who went to fight at Cambridge in September, 1774, said he preferred, when reloading his musket, to stand in front of a tree facing the enemy rather than chance the marksmanship behind him of men of his own side. The World Almanac recalls.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE F-611: Alan B., aged 23, is a seminary student. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I like your suggestions about using actual cases or stories for illustrating my sermons. "But I have never tried the five-minute sermonette for kiddies as a prelude to my regular Sunday morning address. "What psychological counsel would you offer me to make sure I do a good job with my sermonettes?"

Sermonette Strategy
Here are some of the psychological rules that the topnotch clergymen employ in their sermonettes:

- (1) Sit down on the altar steps or chancel rail, with the kiddies on the front pews facing you.
For you then establish more rapport, since your former "giant" height is now reduced to their dwarfed stature.
- Pediatricians and child psychologists routinely sit down to lessen the height difference between doctor and youngster.
- (2) Announce to the adult audience that this sermonette is strictly for the kiddies, but the older folks may listen in, if they care to do so.
- This will protect you from criticism by any four-flushing college members of the congregation, who would otherwise say you were taking a patronizing air and treating them as children!
- (3) Then maintain close eye-contact with your child listeners.
- Alas, some clergymen look back at the adults almost exclusively and talk to them, ignoring the youngsters down front.
- (4) Smile; then greet the youngsters with a cheery "Good morning," and say: "I am now going to tell you a story from the Bible. And it is very exciting, too."
- Instead, I recently saw a stodgy cleric start out by reading a dozen verses from St. Paul's epistles, though the average age of the kiddies he was supposed to fascinate, was not 6 years!
- It astounds me that some seminary educated preachers may have so little empathy and be so lacking in dramatic sense!
- So "cue" your sermonette with that word "story," for kiddies then perk up and expect something exciting, like Eli-sha's having two she bears tear 42 kiddies to pieces, for taunting him about his bald head.
- (5) Use relevant magic tricks and other psychological "gimmicks" adapted to the youthful age of your child audience.
- (6) Adopt the Socratic dialogue technique and ask the children questions, letting them respond and thus cooperate. "Do any of you have a puppy or a kitten at home?" you can inquire.

Then ask if they think Jesus was followed by puppies, as well as by children, and "why do you suppose so?"
(7) Whenever feasible, ask one or two youngsters to step forward and help you in your demonstrations or magic tricks.

(8) Learn to inject suspense and dramatic narration in your vocal tones and gestures; don't monotonously intone what should be a thrilling Bible episode.
(9) Reward kiddies who can answer your simple queries, as by use of two sticks of chewing gum, but give the others a single stick, for your adult audience and cash collections will zoom enough to finance this gum.
(10) Always draw a wholesome moral from your stories, as the McGuffey Readers used to do, and then let the children join in a concluding brief prayer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's to your advantage to make compromises today when conditions call for them. Be the first to show willingness to cooperate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't be nice to a friend today just because you expect something in return. If you're insincere, your pal will be aware of it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) At a social gathering today someone may tell you of a glowing opportunity you can get in on. Chances are it's grossly exaggerated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try not to be overly protective of those in your charge today. It's best to let them stand on their own feet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Take pains to be realistic in your evaluations today, or your optimism will lead you down the garden path.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're still not out of the woods financially. Count your pennies carefully again today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't be too easily influenced today. Just because someone has bigger ideas, it doesn't necessarily follow that they are better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It will take more than just a material gesture to help one you're concerned about. He needs a compassionate listener as well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you're planning something special this evening, stay away from the spots that draw large crowds. Go somewhere cozy and intimate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's a good time to reassess your values to determine whether goals you're seeking are worth all steps required to achieve them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will be far more appealing today if you tone your deeds down a bit rather than boast about them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be doubly sure those you're involved with businesswise today are as ethical about everything as you are. Don't be afraid to ask questions
